MINERS BEGIN NEW STRIKE AS SENATE COMMITTEE PROBES

Industrial War Breaks Out Again in West Virginia Coal Fields as Probe Begins Its Second Week

15,000 EXPECTED TO QUIT AND JOIN OTHERS

No Union Men in Paint and Cabin Creek Districts at Work and Many Non-Union Miners Leave Tools Also

(By Associated Press.)

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 16.—With industrial war again declared in West Virginia the senate coal strike investigating committee today confronted a situation, critical and complicated.

Word from the isolated sections of Paint Creek and Cabin Creek that the strike was again on drifted into Charleston from a half dozen sources and representatives of mine operators and state officials sought in vain for definite word from the little camps along the creeks.

The union attorneys appearing before the committee said they were certain that the men had declined to go back today at meetings held yesterday but they were unable to make any estimate of the number of strikers. There were comparatively few union men in the field, they said, but they believed that both union and non-union men decided to quit.

With the New river district, a few miles away from the creeks, awaiting only the match to set off a conflagration of excitement, the state officials today watched the situation with fear and trembling. For days the New river miners, numbering 15,000, have threatened trouble and it was feared the new outbreak on Paint and Cabin creeks would precipitate the struggle.

The miners' meetings at Eskdale and Kayford yesterday according to reports reaching Charleston, voted to renew strike on the ground that the operators had not lived up to their agreement since the strikers went back to work without discriminating. This claim and the story that mine guards had "beaten up" four men on Cabin creek on Saturday caused the decision.

The senate committee prepared today to call upon the mine operators for their side of the controversy. Ex-mine guards, detectives, keen eyed miners and union organizers thronged the lobby of the hotel where the committee sat. Contradiction and explanation of the stories told all last week by the men and women who lived through what former Governor Glasscock called a "reign of terror" in the strike district, was the program of the operators who had severely witnessed on hand.

The committee urged that the number of witnesses be held down to the lowest possible figure. Only senators Swanson, Martine and Kenyon were on hand to begin today's hearings, Senators Foraker and Shields having returned to Washington last week.

The sensational statements of Lee Calvin, ex-mine guard, relating to the shooting up of the strikers' camp at Holly Grove, has, crystallized the bitterness of the ill feeling and even among the attorneys before the committee and occasional flurries of bitterness shows the undercurrent of resentment.

The presence in Charleston of John P. White, president of the United Mine Workers of America, today resulted in several conferences among union officials. He was in Charleston principally to make an appearance and give bail in the criminal case brought against the mine officials in the federal courts and charging conspiracy under the Sherman law.

A. H. Honaker, a merchant at Holly Grove, said he was arrested by mine guards and taken from his house. He had allowed miners to erect tents on his property, he said, after they had been ejected from the company's houses.

Elizabeth Fish, a pretty mountain girl, said she and May Claypool and another young woman were met by mine guards who made them wade the creek, enforcing the order by guns.

C. L. Workman, a stable boss, said that the guard system was mainly responsible for the trouble.

C. R. Shaw, of Parkersburg, said he was taken to the coal fields during the strike, with his wife and children. He said he worked at Mucklow for four weeks and that he received no pay. "It was all used up the company store," he said, "and the store said I owed the company money."

SEVENTEEN-YEAR-OLD AVIATOR IS DEAD

(By Associated Press.)

BALTIMORE, Md., June 16.—Archie Erwin Cultridar, seventeen years old, said to be the only boy scout in the United States that had ever passed successfully the examination in "aviation" for which he received a gold medal about eighteen months ago, died at the home of his father here yesterday, after an illness of ten months. The young man was formerly a student at the Baltimore Polytechnic Institute and devoted all his spare time while there and later to aeronautic mechanics. Over a year ago he constructed two model aeroplanes which attracted much attention.

AMERICANS LOSE SIX IN BATTLE IN WHICH MOROS ARE ROUTED

The Rebellious Tribesmen on Mount Bagsag in the Philippines Are Driven From Stronghold by U. S. Troops

GENERAL JOHN PERSHING LED AMERICAN FORCES

Dispatches From Island of Jolo Are Meager and Exact Number of Moros Killed Can Not Be Learned

(By Associated Press.)

MANILA, June 16—Complete rout of the rebellious Moros on Mount Bagsag was accomplished by the American forces during the night with the loss of six men and seven wounded.

Reports of the engagement, reached here by wireless from the island of Jolo, are very meager. All of the Americans killed were members of the several companies of scouts. In the first advance upon the mountain last week six Americans were killed. The number of dead among the Moros is not known.

Last night's battle begun just before dark. The fighting was fierce but the American advance so determined that the Moros at last stole away and left the mountain clear. They are now at large and will be pursued ceaselessly. Brigadier General John Pershing, commanding department in Mindanne, is leading his forces.

Hand-to-Hand Conflict Fought on Last Friday

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 16.—The war department had no report today of the latest fighting on the Island of Jolo. A belated report from Brigadier General Pershing received today gave further details of the fighting last week as follows:

"Friday at noon Captain Patrick Moylan, of the Philippine Scouts, with the Thirty-first and Fourteenth companies, Philippine Scouts, took Mount Bunga, after a hand to hand fight. One scout of the Thirty-first company was killed. Mountain side very precipitous. Gun carried up by hand."

DR. COOK, HERE ON HOTTEST DAY, ASKS DANIELS FOR PROBE

Arctic Explorer Writes to Navy Dept. Secretary Asking Investigation of Charges Against Admiral Peary

Sitting in the sweltering heat of his room at the Aragon hotel Monday morning Dr. Frederick H. Cook, the famous polar explorer, who disputes first claim to lamping the pinnacle of the north with Admiral Peary, penned four sheets of closely written note paper to Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels.

It was his first letter to Mr. Daniels, the first time that he has brought himself to the official notice of the navy department. In it he claimed simple justice from the United States government and demanded a sweeping investigation of his charges against Peary.

HERE ON HOTTEST DAY.

Dr. Cook chose the hottest day in June as yet seen to bring his arctic presence to Atlanta. He didn't look like a polar explorer, but far more suggested some stout southern planter who had rather drink his mint julep beneath a honey suckle vine than eat raw dog off a block of eskimo ice.

His hair, slightly tinged with gray was wet with perspiration, and he panted heavily. The doctor dresses for the heat even as he does for the cold. He wore a gray suit of mohair, and upon his feet were brown sandals with a fetching little open-work effect about the toes.

Dr. Cook "poled" into Atlanta Sunday night, accompanied by his secretary. At 3 o'clock Monday afternoon he was off again, bound for Madison, Ga., for a lecture.

ARGUING HIS OWN CAUSE.

That is what the doctor has been doing ever since he came back from the pole—lecturing.

"For the last three years," he declared Monday morning, "I have been doing nothing but talking. I have talked to 35,000 people every week, and millions yearly. That's my object now, to

Women Police Favored By Chief Jas. L. Beavers

Just Back From Convention, Atlanta Chief Declares in Favor of a Squad of Police Women to Aid the Detectives

The appointment of a squad of police women to work in conjunction with the detective department will be urged by Chief Beavers at the next meeting of the board of police commissioners. The department head will recommend that city laws be changed, if necessary, to permit the innovation.

Firm in the belief that the next three years will see a great majorities of cities in the United States waging a war against vice, Atlanta-wise, Chief Beavers returned from the convention of the International Association of Chiefs of Police which was held in Washington last week. He appeared at the station Monday morning but will not formally take over the reigns of the department until Tuesday.

"In five years cities who retain the old restricted district will be as rare in the United States as those that now have eradicated that evil," said the police chief in commenting on the attitude of the police department heads of the United States.

"At the recent meeting more attention was given to the discussion of the vice situation than to any other matter. Last year my paper telling of the work of the better element here would have been met coldly this year nearly every one present applauded the sentiment."

Touching on the question of women police officers, Chief Beavers said:

"Chief Sebastian of Los Angeles, told the convention of the work done in his department by six women police officers. He is the first chief in the country to use them. He said they have been such a success that he couldn't do without them now. They do work that men cannot do, and are not only valuable in the vice crusade but in general police work as well. Los Angeles, you know, is closed like Atlanta, so far as vice is concerned.

"In my report to the board I will recommend that we employ three or four women police in Atlanta. I am certain we can use them to good advantage, just as they have been used to good advantage in Los Angeles. If any changes in city ordinances or the city's charter are necessary in order to employ women police, I will recommend that the board ask council to attend to that feature."

Asked what qualities a police woman must possess, Chief Beavers smiled and said:

"She must be good looking, of course. That is one of the first essentials, if not the very first. She must be intelligent, must be educated, and must be neat and attractive in her dress."

TARIFF GOES TO THE CAUCUS THIS WEEK

Senate Sub-Committees Finish Work and Democrats Will Caucus Soon

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 16.—After six weeks of work on the Underwood tariff bill, Democratic leaders of the senate have nearly completed their task and will have the revised measure ready for the party caucus some day this week.

Majority members of the finance committee met today to begin consideration of the sub-committee's report on the agricultural schedule. Little time will be taken, it was said, because the entire Democratic membership already has conferred on the changes on cattle, and agriculture raw materials which are to go on the free list with a countervailing duty provision.

Schedules remaining to be approved are the sundries, silk and free list, and the committee also has yet to act on the income tax and administrative sections. There are a few undecided points in connection with the metal, cotton and wool schedules to be taken up and the committee also has to determine upon a date when the provisions of the wool and sugar schedules are to be made effective.

A graduated tax on tobacco as an amendment to the tariff bill was unanimously rejected by the majority members of the senate finance committee today who voted down Senator Hitchcock's amendment suggested by Attorney General McReynolds.

The committee approved placing live stock and grains on the free list with a countervailing duty, except oats, which remain dutiable at ten cents a bushel and oatmeal at 33 cents a hundred pounds. Citrus fruits were unchanged.

The committee voted to take bananas from the Underwood free list and impose a duty, how much Chairman Simmons did not announce.

STATES WIN VICTORY OVER RAILWAYS IN RATE DECISIONS

West Virginia, Oregon and Arkansas Rates Upheld as Valid While Part of Missouri Rates Are Declared Valid

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Validity of two-cent passenger laws and maximum freight rates in Arkansas, Missouri and West Virginia were upheld by the supreme court today in another series of decisions in the noted state rate cases. No decision was announced in the Kentucky case. In the Missouri case the great majority of rates contended by the railroads as confiscatory were held valid. State freight rates established in Oregon also were approved.

All claims that state laws attacked interfered with interstate commerce were swept aside, following the precedent set in the Minnesota rate decision a week ago.

In the majority of the Missouri cases and in the Arkansas case the court held the railroads had presented too general data on which to base a claim that their property was being taken without compensation through the operation of the new rates.

Missouri Wins Partial Victory in Rate Cases

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 16.—In the Missouri rate cases today the supreme court held the rates confiscatory on the St. Louis and Hannibal, Kansas City, Clinton and Springfield and Chicago Great Western railroads.

The court held the rates valid as to the St. Louis Southwestern, the Missouri Pacific, the St. Louis Iron Mountain and Southern, the Wabash, the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul and the Chicago and Alton.

The decision holding the rates confiscatory as to the Chicago Great Western was made to apply by virtue of stipulation between the state and railroads to the Quincy, Omaha and Kansas City railroad and the St. Joseph and Grand Island railway.

The decision was based upon the two cent passenger law and the maximum freight law.

Justice Hughes, who announced the decision, held that the point sought to be made by the railroads, told the effect that the Missouri rates were an interference with interstate commerce must be decided against them for the same reasons given by the court in the Minnesota rate cases.

The suits were brought to restrain the enforcement of the freight rate and passenger fare acts of Missouri passed in 1907.

"There were 18 suits in all," it was stated in a morandum from the court.

"In eight of the suits it was stipulated in the court below that they should abide by the decision reached in other cases. Of the remaining ten, two were consolidated into one for purposes of trial, leaving nine suits which were submitted to the court below upon the proofs. The court below enjoined the rates as being confiscatory.

"On the appeals in these nine suits, this court sustains the rates as to six companies, to wit: The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, the Kansas City Southern, the Missouri, Kansas and Texas, and the Chicago and Alton, Rock Island and Pacific, (including the St. Louis, Kansas City and Colorado) and the St. Louis and San Francisco.

The court also sustained the rates of the Missouri law as to the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, the Kansas City Southern, the Missouri, Kansas and Texas, and the Chicago and Alton, Rock Island and Pacific, (including the St. Louis, Kansas City and Colorado) and the St. Louis and San Francisco.

In each of these cases the decrees

WILSON DENIES THAT DIFFERENCES EXIST OVER CURRENCY BILL

President Gives Out Strong Interview Declaring That Differences Among Democrats Have Been Healed

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 16.—In an interview of smashing directness and of unqualified terms, President Wilson this morning endeavored to kill off the teeming rumors of Democratic difference of opinion alleged to be threatening currency legislation at this time.

He said he knew of no such differences. He still had every reason to expect currency legislation at the extra session of congress. He knew the currency bill would be completed within twenty-four to forty-eight hours. He felt authorized to state when completed it would present the composite views of all his advisers on the subject with the best and most practicable and useful ideas preserved.

He said he would have his message to congress ready to present within the present week, and he expected to read it himself, although he had not yet consulted the leaders on the subject and that he would be guided by them.

In regard to the fundamental lines on which the currency legislation is to be drawn, the president was not so communicative. He said he would be glad to discuss the proposed features of the bill, but that he was not a banker and never had had extensive dealings with bankers. Therefore he did not feel competent to handle such a subject in an off-hand way. His fear was that if he attempted to do so he might mislead the country inadvertently and therefore he considered it much better that discussion of the terms of the proposed legislation wait till the bill day before the country as a finished entity.

When asked about Representative Henry, of Texas, and his movement to have currency legislation deferred until

SHERIFF'S OFFICER STABBED TO DEATH; HIS SLAYER SHOT

Dave Yancey, Special Deputy, Is Killed While Trying to Capture Negro Snatch Thief Monday Noon

NEGRO FOLLOWED AND RIDDLED BY POLICE

The Journal Subscribes $25 and Friends in Sheriff's Office Give to Fund for Relief of Mr. Yancey's Family

Dave S. Yancey, special deputy attached to the sheriff's office and the criminal division of the city court, was stabbed to death about noon Monday by Eugene Watson, a negro whom he was seeking to arrest for snatching another negro's pocket book.

Yancey met his death after a long chase and a hard fight with the negro, who was later desperately wounded and finally captured after a battle with the city police.

Watson was on the corner of Whitehall and Forsyth streets, when he snatched a purse containing $4.55 from Jesse Winn, another negro. Winn gave chase, yelling "stop thief."

A number of white people joined in the chase after the thief, and among them was Yancey, who outdistanced the other pursuers. Yancey fired twice at the negro and wounded him in the right leg.

After a chase through back yards and over fences the negro crawled under a house in the rear of 303 Rawson street.

Yancey yelled at him to come out and surrender. The negro did come out, but not to surrender.

KNIFE IN HAND.

The deputy was leaning over looking at the man as he crawled towards him, but did not see, evidently, the knife in his hand. Before Mr. Yancey raised up from his stooping posture, the negro had commenced stabbing him.

The keen knife blade slashed across the deputies' neck twice, and then the negro stabbed him in the heart. As Yancey was toppling to the ground, the negro's knife was raked across his stomach, making another fatal wound.

THRILLING CHASE.

Then the negro sank, dying on the ground, his slayer picked up his revolver. Only two chambers are said to have been emptied at that time. With the revolver in one hand and the bloody knife in the other, and blood pouring from the wound in his leg, Watson started his flight. At no time did he try the streets, but kept running through back yards, hurdling fences, until he arrived at the corner of Windsor street and Woodward avenue, where he crawled under a vacant house.

Two white boys came up just at the end of death struggle and hurled rocks at the fleeing negro, but were unable to follow him to the hiding place.

TRAIL HIDE.

The city police were quickly called to the scene and they traced the negro by the stories of frightened women, who had seen Yancey, gun and knife in hand, running through their yards.

The police found a little blood, where the negro had gone under the house. When they could not find that he had left the house, the place was surrounded.

The house, where the negro hid, stands three or four feet from the ground and is boarded up. A plank had been torn off at the point where Watson crawled under the structure.

The police, among whom were Call Officers Neel Roberts, Gorman and Johnson, tore more planks off the front of the house and finally caught sight of the negro, hiding behind a chimney. When he answered their call to surrender with a bullet, they commenced firing, and it is said that more than twenty shots were fired.

The negro, during the fusillade, was evidently lying with his feet toward the officers, firing across his own body, as

IVY STREET CAR CHANGE STRENUOUSLY PROTESTED

Piedmont Avenue People Say They Don't Want to "Ride Through Darktown"

The people on Piedmont avenue and adjacent streets are up in arms against the proposed abandonment of the street car line on Ivy street, and have begun to file protests both in writing and through their representatives in council.

Councilman Clarence Haverty, of the Eighth ward, has written a letter of protest to Councilman George Boynton, chairman of the electric railways committee of council which committee has the proposition under consideration.

The letter, as suggested, is to leave Ivy street without car tracks when the regrading is finished, and to run the Piedmont avenue line into the city over that street from Pine street to Decatur street, or to Edgewood avenue. The Piedmont avenue line now turns at Pine street into Peachtree, and turns into Ivy street at Peachtree and then proceeds to Auburn avenue, and up Auburn avenue to Peachtree. At least, this was the route before the Ivy street regrading commenced, and will be the route if the car tracks are restored on Ivy street.

As Councilman Haverty says in his letter to Councilman Boynton, the Piedmont avenue people object to the change because it would force them to ride through the heart of "darktown." Piedmont avenue from Forrest avenue north, he says, is one of the best residence streets in the city, but from Forrest avenue south to Decatur it is inhabited almost entirely by negroes.

"The change the street car service as proposed," continues Councilman Haverty's letter, "would require all of the residents on Piedmont avenue, Myrtle street and that general section, to travel through the heart of Darktown every time they went to and from their homes. It would make it necessary for their families to be forced in constant association with all classes of negroes who live in the section between Forrest avenue and Decatur street. It would make it not only unpleasant, but, dangerous and positively unendurable. The forced access to this residence district through Darktown would greatly depreciate the property served by this car line, and should not be considered seriously by your committee for a moment."

The letter further says the citizens are preparing to hold an indignation meeting, until assured that no action would be taken without a hearing from them.

And there are other protests. A delegation consisting of Logan E. Bleckley, Judge Spencer R. Atkinson, Victor H. Kriegshaber and others called on Mayor Woodward Monday morning in protest, while still others have been filed with council in writing.

In all probability the change will not be made, since there is so much objection. In discussing it with the committee last week Preston Arkwright, president of the street car company, said it would be necessary to get practically unanimous consent from the Ivy street people to make the change, and he had no idea they would give it. The chance, as Mr. Arkwright then pointed out, is not urged by his company. He simply said the company would be willing to make the change if there was no objection.

STOCK MUST COMPLY WITH FIRST CONTRACT

Subscriber Needn't Pay for It Otherwise, Supreme Court Now Holds

A person who subscribes for stock in a corporation and the contract of subscription includes certain conditions to be performed before the subscriber is liable for the amount of the stock can not be compelled to pay his subscription until the conditions precedent to liability are complied with.

This in effect was the ruling of the state supreme court Monday morning in the case of G. C. Dotson et al. vs. Savannah, versus the Savannah Pure Food Canning company.

The case got into the Chatham county superior court through a suit brought by the canning company to force Dotson to pay for two shares of stock valued at $100 each. Dotson contended that the company had not met the conditions of its stock sale contract. The lower court directed a verdict in favor of the canning company to which Dotson excepted and appealed to the supreme court, which now reverses the lower court.

Chief Beavers and Commissioner View "September Morn"

Three men stood outside the window of the Cole Book company, on Whitehall street, Monday morning and gazed within at the thirty-eight maidens Morn who have attracted such attention from Atlanta's police force since Saturday.

Yes, she is still there — September Morn, the famous painting by Paul Chabas, which is right now rivaling the dictograph for the limelight.

The trio who stood and leered were Chief of Police Beavers, former Chief of Police Henry Jennings, and Police Commissioner B. Lee Smith. They were trying to decide whether she must go or not.

To Chief Beavers, newly returned from seeing impressive portraits of the country's statesmen in the halls of the public buildings at Washington, September Morn was a revelation. Slowly the chief raised a forefinger and counted the array of shivering beauties.

"Thirty-eight," he sighed. "And they're all bare-faced."

That was the only opinion he would give. Whether he thought September Morn "high art" or "low art," whether he would orde her exile or allow her to remain, whether a case would be made against the manager of the store, he would not say.

Captain Jennings and Commissioner Smith were equally as noncommittal. They all admitted, however, that September Morn was "beautiful."

A SHORT PEACH CROP TO MAKE FINE FRUIT

Big Peaches of Fine Flavor This Year, Says State Entomologist

A short peach crop, but one of the finest quality, is State Entomologist Lee Worsham's prediction of the outcome of this Georgia product.

Mr. Worsham is far more optimistic than the commission men as to the quality of the fruit, but he estimates the crop shorter than either the railroad men or the big fruit dealers.

The state entomologist predicts that only thirteen hundred carloads of peaches will be gathered, while the railroad officials and produce men have predicted from 1,500 to 1,700.

The trees are in fine condition, and because there are fewer peaches on each tree the individual paches are certain to be larger than usual and of very fine flavor, provided, of course, Jupiter Pluvius doesn't "butt in" and dilute the glocose (if that is the word).

The state entomologist opines that contrary reports have related to the inferior fruit shipped so far. He was referring to the "Greensboros" and "Mayflowers."

"Miss Elberta" should come out fine later in the season, and command good prices, says he.

The first peaches brought from $1.50 to $2.25 a crate, and retailed on an average at 60 cents per basket.

There are no peaches to be had here now, according to two of Atlanta's commission men.

RECORDER EVADES MAYOR WITH 29-DAY SENTENCES

In Order to Checkmate Woodward's Pardoning Proclivities, One Day Is Left Off

Presumably in order to get around the pardon power of the mayor, Recorder Broyles has begun to deal out sentences of 29 days instead of 30 days.

The charter gives the mayor the right to pardon offenders sentenced 30 days or more by the recorder, and Mayor Woodward has exercised this right to such an extent that Recorder Broyles recently charged him with obstructing justice, with the result that the two had quite a lively newspaper controversy.

Recorder Broyles then announced that he would head off the mayor simply by means of 29-day sentences, and Monday morning he handed out three.

W. R. Franklin, a white man, of Howell Mill road, was sentenced 29 days and $100 cost to the higher court for selling whiskey.

D. T. Dobbins, also of Howell Mill road, got three sentences of 29 days each. He was charged with drunkenness. Having been on provxation, he got a sentence for the former offence, another for violating his probation, and a third for the last offense.

Three negroes, each charged with selling whiskey, got 29 days and were bound over.

Crowd Traps Negro in Store He Was Robbing

A couple of hundred excited people surrounded the Harris dry goods store at 418-20 Marietta street Sunday morning, armed with bricks, axes, bottles, tin cans, and frying pans, while Howard Hood, a negro burglar, trembled within the building, afraid even to stick his head outside.

Passersby saw Hood tear a wire screen off the back of the building and enter the place about 7 o'clock Sunday morning. A crowd quickly collected, and when Hood stuck his head out of the window a few moments later, he beheld a howling mob.

Six bricks, a tomato can, and a dope bottle dented the weatherboarding in the neighborhood of his dome, and Hood decided to abdicate. In the meantime the police had been called, and Officers Gorman and Roberts arrived on the scene.

Gorman stuck his head in the rear window, and looked around. The burglar was nowhere to be seen. The officer hunted once, twice and again, but all was silent as the grave. Directly opposite the window was a closet door. When the policeman drew his gun and shot a splinter off the top, the door opened like a battering ram had struck it, and the black plunged into the room. There was a neat hole through the crown of his new straw hat.

At the police station the negro gave the name of Howard Hood. He is charged with burglary.

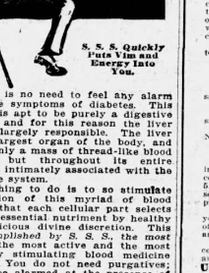
Diabetes No Longer Feared
Peculiar Action of a Remarkable Remedy in Controlling Liver Action.



There is no need to feel any alarm over the symptoms of diabetes. This disease is apt to be purely a digestive trouble, and for this reason the liver is held largely responsible. The liver is the largest organ of the body, and is not only a mass of thread-like blood vessels, but throughout its entire fabric is intimately associated with the digestive system.
The thing to do is to so stimulate the action of this myriad of blood vessels that each cellular part selects its own essential nourishment for healthy and judicious divine discretion. This is accomplished by S. S. S., the most potent, the most active and the most naturally stimulating blood medicine known. You do not need purgatives; do not be deceived by the presence of sugar nor of so-called sediment.
Just stick to S. S. S. and bear in mind that this celebrated remedy has such a specific stimulating action on the local cells of the liver as to preserve their natural welfare and give a proper relative assistance, each cell to the other.
Dropsical tendencies are thus overcome, biliousness soon becomes a memory and jaundice, malaria, afflictions of the spleen and glandular swellings will be entirely eliminated. You will find S. S. S. on sale at all drug stores and for complete free medical advice, free, consult by mail the laboratory of The Swift Specific Co., 137 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

WANTED--100,000 BOYS IN GEORGIA CORN CLUBS

Walter G. Cooper Suggests Way to Meet $37,000,000 Deficit in State Food Supply

A way has been found to meet the $37,000,000 deficit in the food supply of Georgia.

Secretary Walter G. Cooper, of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, says the means are at hand by which this may certainly and surely be done.

The way to do it, he says, is to organize 100,000 boys in the corn clubs, and thereby increase ten-fold the work which has already added 25,000,000 bushels of corn to the annual crop.

Mr. Cooper urges an immediate and active state-wide interest in the 1913 Georgia Corn Show as the most important step in that direction.

He says:

"Leading authorities on the food supply of Georgia agree in the estimate that the people sent out of this state last year $172,496,000 for corn, oats, hay, meat, dairy products and other food that should be raised here.

"The cotton and cotton seed crops lack $27,456,000 of paying for the food we bought.

"This in spite of the fact that the corn crop of Georgia has increased 25,000,000 bushels in five years.

"We have heard of a revolution in agriculture and statistics show that the average yield of corn per acre went up from 10 to 15 bushels in five years, but Georgia still lacks a great deal of raising her food.

"In the face of wonderful improvements wrought by the corn clubs in the past five years, it is hard to believe the statement that the cotton crop lacks thirty-seven millions of paying for the food supplies brought into the state, but these estimates are vouched for by such men as the state pure food inspector, P. A. Methvin, H. G. Hastings, chairman of the chamber of commerce committee on agriculture, agriculture.

"Of course the farmers raise some corn, oats and hay, but they must have consumed what they raised otherwise they would not have to buy.

"The farmers of Georgia, according to the state department of agriculture, produce something over $242,000,000, possibly $250,000,000, but when it is remembered that the farmers have to buy mules, fertilizers, hardware, clothes, school books and a great many other things besides food, it is clear that they have very little left to pay the enormous food bills indicated by the foregoing figures.

"What are we going to do about it; what is the answer?

"The answer is that we must double the work of the corn clubs and farm demonstration agents so bravely begun during the past five years.

"Where there are now 10,000 boys in corn clubs, we should have 100,000. This means the economic salvation of Georgia."

FELDER LEAVES ATLANTA ON TRIP TO CINCINNATI

Thomas B. Felder, the attorney, left Atlanta for Cincinnati Sunday afternoon, to be away from the city on a business trip for several days.

The absence of Mr. Felder from the city is taken as indication that the grand jury will not take up an investigation of the famous dictograph episode this week, if it makes such a probe at all.

Mr. Felder declared that his trip has nothing to do with the dictograph case, he stated that he expected to return within a week.

The foreman of the grand jury, L. H. Beck, has intimated that the jury may take up the dictograph matter if it is able to dispose of its routine business before its term of service expires, June 30.

GROCER ROUTS THREE FOOTPADS IN BATTLE

Joseph Franklin Fights Trio of Negroes and Escapes With Flesh Wound

Joseph Franklin, a wholesale grocer of 151 Washington street, is nursing a painful flesh wound in the neck Monday and congratulating himself that he escaped with his life from a desperate fight with three footpads Sunday night. Franklin was held up in Crumley Place between Washington and Pulliam streets, but his plucky battle put his assailants to rout.

Three shots were fired after Franklin as he ran down Crumley place, one of the bullets inflicting a flesh wound on his neck. A few minutes after the hold up, R. M. Bond, Franklin's stepfather, and F. H. Hayes, of 25 Crumley place, attracted by the sound of the shots, captured, at the point of a rifle, a negro who was fleeing from the scene.

Franklin was bound homeward about 9:20 o'clock Sunday night when three negroes stepped from an alley between Washington and Pulliam streets and stopped him. One of the trio shoved a pistol against his body and ordered him to throw up his hands and keep quiet.

Franklin wore a diamond scarf pin, and as one of the three reached for it Franklin grabbed him around the neck and threw him to the sidewalk. The two other negroes intervened and knocked Franklin down. Finally he scrambled to his feet and bolted toward Washington street. As he fled, three shots were fired. A stinging sensation in the back of the neck told him he was hit, and he sought a drug store to have his wound dressed.

The negro captured by Bond and Hayes was turned over to the police and locked up at headquarters on a charge of "suspicion." He gave his name as Horace Pinkney. He said that he is a laborer and lives in the rear of 250 Richardson street.

DISTRICT WORK PLANNED BY THE PRESBYTERIANS

The Central Presbyterian church, by a system of districts, will carry its pastoral work into every part of the city during the summer. The plan was announced Sunday by Dr. Dunbar Ogden.

The city will be divided into districts and in each one a church member will be appointed by the pastor to visit and keep in touch with the church members —to be virtually an assistant pastor.

Toward the end of summer, a series of group meetings will be held the pastor going from one group to another holding cottage meetings.

IN LOCAL THEATERS

FORSYTH—Vaudeville.
BIJOU—Vaudeville and Pictures.

Fun in cartoonery is about the way to qualify the entertainment which Bud Fisher will contribute to the bill of Keith vaudeville all this week at the Forsyth. In addition to the creator of "Mutt and Jeff," there are six other parts of the program, and every one will have its peculiar value, all adding strength to a bill that promises to awake a keen and new interest and crowd the popular theater at the daily matinee and night performances.

One of the features of the bill will be the appearance of Pauline Welch (Mrs. Bud Fisher). Miss Welch is going to sing a lot of new songs. She is going to show that she has every right to the position she has taken in vaudeville. She is pretty, graceful and a singing comedienne as clever as any. She introduced some of the most popular songs of the present time when she was at the Forsyth a year ago, and on this trip she promises some new ones.

"The Lawn Party," a musical comedy with ten clever young people, will be another of the special features. This act has been brought from New York as a card of special interest. The juveniles are going to do impersonations of some of the great stars of the stage. They will present Eva Tanguay, Irene Franklin, Lillian Russell, Fay Templeton, Daniel Warfield, George M. Cohan, and other stars.

"The Three Leightons" will be one of the hit-making acts of the week. There are no better entertainers in vaudeville. Among the others will be Karl Emmy's Pets; Adonis and his dog in "The Act Beautiful," and Whitefield and Ireland in an original comedy idea.

There will be the usual daily matinee and evening performances. Seats for any performance can be obtained in advance.

George Klein's production of "Quo Vadis" is the attraction all this week at the Grand. There will be daily matinees at 2:30 and night performances at 8:30. The prices of admission, including a reserved seat, will be 25 cents at the matinees and 25 and 50 cents at night. The exhibition will last two and a quarter hours at each performance, there being three complete acts with eight scenes; and intermissions between the acts will relieve the thrill that the wonderful production generates.

"Quo Vadis" is conceded to be the most wonderful production that has been made in motion pictures. It took eighteen months of hard work and the expenditure of thousands of dollars by the Societa Italiana Cines, of Rome, Italy, to make the picture and in Europe it created a sensation. George Kleine witnessed the production in Rome and at the cost of a real fortune secured the American rights. The pictures have been presented in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Richmond and Norfolk. In New York at the Astor theater, more than 100 performances have been given and within the past month seats have been selling two and three weeks in advance. In Chicago at McVickers the the theater has been packed to its capacity for four weeks, and at the Garrick in Philadelphia the capacity of the theater can not take care of the requests for accommodations. Norfolk played the pictures a week to the greatest crowds that ever assembled in the Wells house there, and in Richmond last week it was not possible to accommodate all who wanted seats. There has been an advance sale here in Atlanta that indicates that the "Quo Vadis" pictures are known and that the great theater is going to be crowded all the week.

Henryk Sienkiewicz wrote the novel "Quo Vadis." At times there have been dramatic productions of the story, but because of the wonderful details, no stage wizard has been able to reproduce the effects. It has been left to motion pictures to give the world the facts. Every detail is covered. The burning of Rome makes a wonderful sensation: the combat of the gladiators makes a thrilling scene, and the dash of the lions to devour the Christians is a scene that is so wonderful that it has created a sensation.

There are 10,000 feet of film used in the picture. Every inch was made in Rome. A skilled crew of operators with special machines and a special stage setting will be in charge at the Grand, and the picture will be presented precisely as it is being offered at the same time in New York, Chicago and Philadelphia.

The box office is open daily after 9 a. m.

BRAZILIAN MINISTER SEES ARMOR PLATE MADE

(By Associated Press.)

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Pa., June 16.—Dr. Lauro Muller, minister of foreign affairs of Brazil, today watched the manufacture of armor plate and other war munitions in the steel plant here.

The Brazilian envoy, in this country to return a visit of former Secretary of State Root to Brazil, saw plates being made that will be used in constructing battleships for Argentina.

Dr. Muller arrived here from Washington after a hot ride and visited the steel mills on the hottest day of the year here. Breakfast was served for his party at the steel mill's dining room. The party will return to New York late today.

MAYOR TO SIGN BUDGET; UP TO COUNCIL MONDAY

Contract for Crematory to Be Drawn Then—Mayor Will Approve That Also

The June budget, carrying $260,000 to pay for the new crematory, will be approved by Mayor Woodward Monday and sent to council Monday afternoon.

A contract between the city and the Destructor company, builders of the crematory, probably will be passed by council Monday afternoon, and the mayor's approval will be necerray on this document to make it complete.

In approving the budget, the mayor does so on the express condition that nothing in it conflicts with the decision of the supreme court in the crematory case. The mayor, as he says, wants to track the decision absolutely, and will be careful not to be "in contempt."

The council session Monday afternoon is likely to be enlivened by a debate over the Ashley ordinance to separate white and colored people in residence sections. The ordinance provides that negroes shall not reside in a block without the consent of a majority of the white residents, and that white people shall not live in a "negro block" without the consent of a majority of the colored residents. The ordinance goes to council with a favorable report by the polic committee.

STOCKHOLDERS STAND BY GUARANTEE TRUST

Some 600 Appear for Company When Receivership Hearing Is Resumed

Interventions of 400 bondholders representing $193,815 and 200 stockholders representing 1,715 shares of stock that the receivership suit be denied were in superior court Monday when the hearing in the Guarantee Banking and Trust case was resumed before Judge John T. Pendleton.

The bondholders and stockholders represented by Rosser and Brandon and Napier, Wright and Cox maintained that the company was solvent and its business could be conducted without court intervention. The bills subscribed entirely with the answer made by the company to the receivership suit.

The court Monday probed deep into the affairs of the Guarantee, as a result of the auditor's report recently submitted showing that the transfer of the assets of the old Guarantee company to the present organization had been made at an advanced figure.

Smith, Hastings and Ransom appeared for the stockholders requesting a receiver for the company.

Hearing in the case doubtless will consume several days in superior court, but, the receivership feature will be finished this week, it is expected.

Sunday Was a Hot One

While the official Sunday temperature was not known, the day was hot enough. Little breeze stirred, and the sun shone from a clear sky.

Thermometers inoicated a temperature in the nineties, and trolley cars did a big business, as did also the parks and soft drink stands.

BOARDED MOVING TRAIN; BROWN DIES OF HURTS

Stone Mountain Citizen Injured in Atlanta Yards Saturday Night

Mr. Karl C. Brown, a merchant of Stone Mountain, Ga., died early Monday morning in an Atlanta sanitarium whither he had been taken shortly after midnight. His skull had been fractured by a fall while he was trying to board a moving train near Moore street crossing.

Brown and C. B. Bishop, of Scotland, Ga., had returned to Atlanta late Sunday afternoon from Warm Springs, Ga., it is said. They had two young ladies with them and after taking these home they found that they had but a short time in which to catch their train. It was due to leave the Union depot about 12 o'clock over the Georgia road.

They decided to cut across town and board the train at the Moore street crossing. They reached the crossing in time. The train came by moving at a rather high rate of speed. Bishop tried to grab the step-rails and was thrown to the ground.

Brown tried, missed them, and plunged across the track behind the train. On the parallel track was a switch engine. Brown's head struck the massive wooden head-piece and he was knocked to the ground unconscious. Later his hat was found where it had been thrown from his head to the top of the head-piece of the switch engine.

No wheels ran over Brown's body, and the injury on his head caused his death. He was taken to the sanitarium, but died within a few hours. The body was removed to Harry G. Poole's chapel.

Railroad detectives made a case against Bishop for boarding a moving train. He was taken to the police station, where he made a small bond.

V., was present, and Knights of Pythias and Shriners were there.

The pallbearers were Messrs. Henry H. Calanius, John E. Murphy, Dr. Joseph Jacobs, George W. Perrett, Frank Ellis, Dorald Bain, Frank Calloway and Clark Howell. At West View the Knights Templars held a special service before the body was lowered to its last resting place.

"Every fact is a solemn thing; it is the voice of truth in nature."

Emerson

And we bring a news and portentious fact. Nature has decreed that Picric and Citric acids combined in test tube will coagulate and determine the presence and amount of another of her products, viz., albumen.

Thus when albumen is disappearing in a case of Bright's Disease, Nature's agents will establish the fact.

Hence the curability of Bright's Disease by Fulton's Renal Compound is not a question but a fact in Nature that any open minded scientist can prove who cares to take the time.

But like all of Nature's processes, it is deliberate. Hence it should be invoked before the patient is in crisis. Even food can be taken to a starving man too late.

The heart and tonic treatment given by physicians in this disease does not conflict with the Renal Compound—the motive of which is to prevent the escape of albumen—the reaction necessary to recovery.

If you have Bright's Disease you owe to yourself and family to try Fulton's Renal Compound before giving up. It can be had at Edmondson Drug Co., 11 N. Broad St., and 196 N. Pryor St., Atlanta, Ga.

Ask for pamphlet on our investigation into the curability of Bright's Disease or write John J. Fulton Co., San Francisco.—(Advt.)

SLEUTHS AND NEGRO IN DARK FIGHT A DUEL

Laundry Safe Robberies Culminate in Pinkerton Man's Discovery of Thief

In the darkness within the Troy Steam laundry building at 210 Houston street, Saturday night, Herman Butler, a negro employee, and Fred Farris, a member of the Pinkerton Detective agency, exchanged pistol shots until the black broke through a window at the back of the building and fled.

For six months the negro had been carrying on a systematic robbery of the laundry safe. The owners of the laundry, unable to place the thefts, which amounted to about $500, called on the Pinkerton agency for help. The suspicion of the detectives was directed to Butler.

Saturday night a Pinkerton man was stationed in the building. It is thought that the negro concealed himself about the place when it was locked up for the night.

The detective waited behind a screen. It grew dark rapidly. Suddenly the negro slid into the room. The Pinkerton man watched him. The black went to the telephone exchange, rung up every 'phone in the house, and satisfied that no one was about the place approached the safe.

He had just opened it with a key when the detective leaped out from behind the screen. At the same instant the negro turned and fired. The detective's gun answered, and the negro fled, leaping through a rear window and escaping through an alley.

He had been identified, however, and Sunday afternoon City Detectives Coker and Gillespie located him at 99 Rondau street. He was arrested and is now at police headquarters charged with burglary.

SELLING COCAINE NO CRIME, SAYS APPEAL

Dr. McAfee Tells Court City Has No Law Against Peddling Dope

The city's right to punish a man for selling cocaine has been questioned in an appeal filed in superior court by Dr. W. W. McAfee, recently sentenced to thirty days in the stockade and fined $500 by Recorder Broyles for selling dope on the street. The appeal sets forth that the city ordinance of 1901 prohibiting the sale of cocaine does not appear in the code of 1910, and there is no longer a law.

Mundy & Cornwell and C. J. Wellborn, attorneys for Dr. McAfee, declared Monday that the case would be taken to the supreme court if necessary to settle the question. Dr. McAfee, they asserted, according to the law as outlined in the code and sanctioned by council, has been guilty of violating no municipal ordinance.

The legal question involved, according to the attorneys, is whether or not the ancient ordinance or the published code, which is circulated as the city's statutes, constitutes the law.

City Attorney Mayson is of the opinion that the actual ordinance passed by council in 1901 banning cocaine is binding, and Recorder Broyles acted entirely within his power when he gave Dr. McAfee a sentence in police court.

A writ of certiorari field by Dr. McAfee granted by superior court on Saturday, sets up that the ordinance under which the code of 1910 was adopted makes the contents of the code the actual law of the city.

Wed at Midnight. Couple Drives to Atlanta in Auto

Married at midnight Saturday in the heart of the mountains of north Georgia, Gordon Cannon and his bride, who was Miss Nellie Buffington, of Creighton, Ga., rode nearly a hundred miles to Atlanta in an automobile for their honeymoon trip, reaching this city early Sunday morning.

The bride's parents objected to the marriage of their daughter, who was only sixteen years old. Saturday morning Mr. Cannon procured an automobile, and away they sped to Canton, Ga., where Newt White, justice of the peace, was routed from his slumbers, and performed the ceremony at the witching hour Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Cannon spent Sunday in Atlanta taking in the sights. They returned to Creighton Sunday night to break the news to Mrs. Cannon's parents.

"TAKE CARE OF BABY!" SUICIDE'S LAST WORDS

Young Butcher Quits Life, Leaving His Widow to Struggle on Alone

M. Roy Fowler, a butcher of 125 Hunnicutt street, committed suicide at his home Sunday afternoon by swallowing an acid.

The young man walked down the hallway to where his wife was standing with their six-months'-old baby in her arms. He staggered slightly, grasped the railing of the balustrade to steady himself, and then faced his wife.

"I'm dying!" he said, "and it won't be but a moment before I'm dead. Take care of the baby. I just had to do it. Don't try to save me."

He dropped unconscious and never spoke again. He died on the way to the Grady hospital.

His body was removed to the P. J. Bloomfield undertaking parlors, and will be taken to Indian Creek cemetery Tuesday morning at 9:30 o'clock where the funeral and interment will take place.

Coroner Donehoo investigated the matter Sunday night, and stated that he believed the man was troubled over financial matters, which prompted him to take his own life.

The young man was a member of the Piedmont lodge, No. 190, Odd Fellows, and Chappewa tribe, No. 50, Red Men. He was forty-six years of age, and had lived in Atlanta for several years.

Besides his wife and baby he leaves three brothers, W. A., J. L. and T. A. Fowler, and two sisters, Mrs. L. A. Hudson and Miss Nan Fowler.

The deceased had been operating a butcher shop on East Hunter street.

LAWMAKER TO WORK FOR BUZZARDS' ERADICATION

The old theory that turkey buzzards are natural agents of health is not shared by Representative D. C. Pickett, of Terrell county, who plans to introduce a bill in the coming session of the legislature which will remove from this carrion bird all protection of the laws.

Mr. Pickett takes the position that the turkey buzzard spreads hog cholera. He will propose legislation designed to result in the complete annihilation of the winged scavengers.

Asa G. Candler Said in the American Yesterday—

South in Magnificent Shape---"The South, when we come to consider our immediate prospects, is in absolutely magnificent shape. I know much of conditions in Georgia of my own knowledge."

Far from believing the country on the verge of hard times or anything like serious financial depression, Mr. Candler believes the horizon to be abundantly rainbowed and promising nothing but good things.

He said that if he did not feel this way about it he would not leave the U. S. for Europe to be gone 2 months.

ATLANTA'S PLAYGROUNDS OPENED MONDAY MORNING

Children Swarm to the Six Grounds All Over City and Hail Opening With Joy

Six playgrounds for white children and two for colored in Atlanta were opened Monday morning with great enthusiasm for a pleasant and beneficial year displayed by directors and all the kiddies.

At each of the playgrounds crowds of the little folks were present all day, from the hour they opened at 8:30 o'clock, until they closed at 11:30 in the morning, to reopen again for the afternoon session from 3:30 o'clock until 6:30.

Girls and boys came out to play, to slide down the shoots, cavort on rings and bars, and do all kinds of stunts. The playgrounds are fitted out this year in a better manner than ever before. There are new appliances for athletic work and general recreation. There are sand piles for the youngest and "acting poles" for the oldest. A large corps of well-trained and enthusiastic instructors will have charge of each ground and all points to a happy year for the children of Atlanta.

The park board has been fortunate in securing for this summer the services of Joe Bean as supervisor of playgrounds. Mr. Bean is well known as the athletic director of the Atlanta Athletic club and as coach at Marist college. He has had wide experience in training young people in the way they should go, not only in Atlanta but in numerous summer camps which he has conducted around Boston. He should prove an efficient and wise supervisor for the lads and lassies.

The playgrounds which opened Monday were the Grant park, Miss Charlotte Underwood, director, Miss Annie Whiteford Hill, assistant; Joyner park, W. M. Francis, director, Miss Nellie Orr, assistant; Mims park, Miss Eugenia Jones, director; Pine Hill, Miss Virginia Scott, director; Stewart avenue, Miss Annie McGee, director; English Avenue school, director not yet selected; Storrs school (colored), Alice Cary, director; Gray Street school (colored), Willie Kelley, director.

There are fewer playgrounds this year than last, the park board deciding that it is better to have six grounds with adequate equipment than a larger number with inadequate equipment. Playgrounds have been in existence in Atlanta but three years, but their popularity during that time has been wonderful, and every ward in the city is clamoring for them.

the money trust had been investigated more thoroughly, the president said he had not talked with Mr. Henry and knew nothing more than he had seen in the papers. But he added that he did not believe Mr. Henry had seen the proposed currency bill.

The rumor that Secretary Bryan also is opposed to currency legislation until after the money trust is fully exposed was denounced by the president as positively untrue. He said he knew beyond question that this was erroneous. Mr. Bryan is not opposed to currency legislation at this time, although the president admitted that Mr. Bryan might not have entered largely into the currency legislation as one of the factors in its preparation.

The president said several members of congress had suggested it might be better to put off this legislation until the regular session, but that the reason was altogether that of the physical difficulty of contending with the weather conditions in Washington during the summer. He added that he did not believe the weather would stop the legislation.

He said he took not the slightest stock in the stories of differences of opinion stopping the bill. He said of course there had been differences. The subject was of a nature to cause that. When the Democrats came to Washington, they knew what they wanted to do with the tariff, as far as the general principles were concerned, and they could go ahead without much delay. But on the currency there was not that crystallization of opinion. Almost everybody had a different view as to some feature of it.

It took time for these differences to be ironed out. But it had been done, almost completely. The differences had been honest, and they had been disposed of with the single purpose of preserving the very best out of all the ideas offered. Therefore it could not be called the Glass bill nor the Owen bill nor the McAdoo bill when it finaly was offered in the two houses.

But he wanted it finally and emphatically understood that he expected the movement for this legislation to go right ahead, and that he was quite confident that it would be passed before congress adjourned.

TWO LITTLE GIRLS, AGED 12, WANT JOBS AS CHILD NURSES

The little girls in this picture are looking for employment in order that they may help their mothers pay the bills.

Both are the same age, 12 years. The mother of one is a widow. The mother of the other was deserted by her husband.

They went to the public schools throughout the school year just closed, and now when vacation hits come they won't be able to play, like other little girls more fortunate, but must work.

They appealed to the Associated Charities to help them find jobs. The charities will not allow them to work in factories. It wants to find work that will be pleasant and congenial for them, and at the same time work where they can earn their pay.

So the charities has decided that the little girls would make good child nurses.

That is, to take care of smaller children, keeping them off the streets and out of danger, and to play with them, and maybe to roll them in their little carriages.

These child nurses are employed by many mothers, and do the work very well.

Anyone who has such a place, or knows of one, should communicate with Miss Ramsbeck, at the Associated Charities offices, on the top floor of the Gould building.

The trio of members of the department of surveys and exhibits of the Russell Sage foundation, of New York, has nearly completed its investigation of Atlanta, and has announced exactly along what lines the survey was made.

Living and housing conditions has been one phase which the social surveyors have been looking into. Aother has been methods of recreation ,its opportunities ,advantages and needs.

Methods of handling law-breakers and the general problems of crime and poverty also have come under the surveillance of the investigators. They have studied sanitation and public health, as well as public education.

bullet wounds were found in the bottom of both of his feet.

FATALLY WOUNDED.

When the officers saw that the negro was moving no more, they crawled under the house, and pulled him out. In a semi-conscious condition, he was rushed to police headquarters and then to the Grady hospital, where at 2 o'clock surgeons were operating. Besides the bullets in his feet and his leg, the negro was shot once through the stomach, and it is this wound which is expected to prove fatal.

At the hospital the negro was searched and in his pocket was found the purse he had snatched from the negro, Winn. In the purse was $4.55, and some papers, which made the identification complete.

It is said at the hospital that the negro will probably not live to stand trial for his crime.

Watson has a bad reputation, and the police declare that there is a reward outstanding against him as the result of a crime in another county.

Mr. Yancey was thirty-eight years of age, and had been a special deputy attached to the sheriff's office and the city criminal court since Sheriff Mangum first went into office. He was regarded as an efficient officer and was a man of a kindly and generous nature.

FAMILY IN DISTRESS.

Mr. Yancey lived in a little cottage on the oJnesboro road, and it was a pathetic scene there, when deputy sheriffs drove up in an automobile and informed the family that the husband and father was dead.

Mr. Yancey had nothing, it is said, except his salary, and his family has been left in very straightened circumstances by the stroke of the negro's knife.

Soon after the news of his death reached the court house, a subscription for Mr. Yancey's family was started. The sheriff's office gave $50, Deputy John Owen gave $5, Newt Garner, of the solicitor's office, gave another $5; and Harry Latham, of the city solicitor's office, offered a similar amount. The Atlanta Journal has subscribed $25.00 to the fund.

It is expected that the fun for the officer's stricken family will be rapidly swelled. Those desiring to assist the family can send their subscriptions to The Journal or direct to the office of Sheriff Wheeler Mangum at the court house.

To increase the misery of the family is the fact that two of the children are ill.

The widow was Miss Lelia Brand, of Gwinnett county, where Mr. Yancey was raised. The following children survive the slain man: Mamie, Lois, Paul, Obie, Grace and Willine.

Besides his wife and children the deputy is survived by the following brothers and sisters: A. T. Yancey and Robert J. Yancey, of Grayson; Tilford Yancey, of Snelling; Gentle Yancey, of Harbin; Mrs. Estelle Hudson, Mrs. Edna Evins and Mrs. Pearl Brand.

STATES WIN VICTORY OVER RYS. IN RATE DECISIONS

of the lower court in favor of the railroads were reversed.

The decision is a partial victory for Missouri as the lower court had held the rates confiscatory on all the roads.

In the cases in which the rates were held confiscatory the supreme court today modified the lower court's decree so that the railroad commissioners and the attorney general of the state may apply to the court for further action whenever it shall appear that by reason of a change in circumstances the rates fixed by the states acts are sufficient to yield reasonable compensation.

"In the cases of these companies, the decrees are reversed and the cases remanded with instructions to dismiss the bills, respectively, without prejudice."

Under stipulations in the court below this decision upholding the Missouri Pacific, the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern, the Wabash, the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul and the Chicago and Alton.

"The court holds the rates to be confiscatory," added the memorandum, "to wit: The St. Louis and Hannibal, the Kansas City, Clinton and Springfield and the Chicago Great Western.

"In these three cases the decrees are affirmed with the modification that the railroad commissioners and the attorney general of the state may apply to the court whenever it shall appear that by reason of a change in circumstances the rates fixed by the state's acts are sufficient to yield reasonable compensation."

STATE'S MEAT CONCERNS IN FOR INSPECTION

For the purpose of making a minute personal inspection of the slaughter pens and meat markets of the state, Pure Food Inspector P. A. Metnvin and Assistant State Veterinarian H. C. Hutchens will leave Atlanta Tuesday morning on a circuit of a dozen or more cities and towns.

In order that the butchers and marketmen may not have any advance notice of their coming the two officials are keeping their itinerary secret. They expect to visit all the principal towns in Georgia before the end of the year.

Arkansas Freight and Passenger Rates Upheld

WASHINGTON, June 16.—The Arkansas maximum freight rate law and the two-cent passenger fare law were today upheld as valid by the supreme court.

Kansas Oil Rate Annulled By Supreme Court Decision

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Because of a provision in the law arbitrarily fixing $500 damages for each violation, the supreme court today annulled as unconstitutional the Kansas statute of 1905 which fixed maximum rates for transporting oil by rail. The objectionable clause was held to prevent railroads from testing whether the rates were confiscatory.

Crepe de Chine Underwear Half Price

And not just a few odd pieces but practically every crepe de chine garment of this wonderfully fine stock!

Half price!

Indeed, such splendid news hardly gets into the papers once in a twelve-months.

And there is no denying that right now crepe de chine underwear is in the height of fashion's favors.

Makers have been straining every point to make deliveries---the scarcity that you have heard so much of this season of crepe de chine, is in a great measure due to the unprecedented use of this fabric for underwear.

And in face of all these facts, we come forward with a half price sale!

It is hard to imagine a woman who will not be interested, who will not want to share the opportunities---and what a fine time this month's brides will have!

The sale begins with the opening of the store, and although the half price extends to every crepe de chine garment in this big well-selected stock, excepting a few white petticoats and several sets, we do not believe quantities will last long as soon as women come to see just what this opportunity is.

The price range:

$5.00 Garments are	$2.50	$10.00 Garments are	$5.00
$6.00 Garments are	$3.00	$12.00 Garments are	$6.00
$7.50 Garments are	$3.75	$15.00 Garments are	$7.50
$8.00 Garments are	$4.00	$18.00 Garments are	$9.00
$8.50 Garments are	$4.25	A $36.00 Set is	$18.00
$9.00 Garments are	$4.50	A $40.00 " "	$20.00

Drawers, including knickerbockers, gowns, petticoats, combinations, princess slips and a few negligees. Choose from pink, light blue, yellow and white—except the petticoats. No white petticoats.

The crepe de chine is always pure silk, heavy quality. As the prices mount the trimmings become more elaborate and beautiful. Dainty rosettes and bows, sheer shadow laces, rich cream cluny laces, Irish crochet laces and round thread Valenciennes. A woman would search long and far for more exquisite garments—remember, they are our own fine stock!

An Injustice to Georgia Teachers.

One of the most urgent duties before the approaching session of the Legislature will be that of providing some means for the prompt payment of the State's school teachers. Under the present system, or rather lack of system, the teachers must wait for their salaries until several months after their work has been done. That is not only a hardship and an injustice to the men and women who are devoting themselves to the all important cause of education but it is also a serious hindrance to the progress and efficiency of the schools.

There is reproduced elsewhere on this page a resolution adopted at the last meeting of the Georgia Educational Association, which every member of the General Assembly should find it profitable and stimulating to read. As this resolution truly declares, although our judges and other State officials are paid promptly, a gross discrimination is practiced against the teachers of the common schools and particularly against those of the rural districts "who must grapple with the most important educational problems in Georgia." That this is "a reflection upon the integrity of the business methods of our State" no one can deny. Far more than that, it is a barrier in the path of the State's development at those points where development is most vitally needed.

If we understand the situation, the tardy payment of teachers' salaries is due not to a lack of funds but to the lack of adequate methods in administering such funds as the State has at its disposal during each fiscal year. It would seem, therefore, that with a few well considered readjustments this defect can be remedied. Certainly, something should be done to assure the prompt payment of the teachers at the end of each scholastic month.

Reports say that the nation's mint beds are flourishing.

Not so long ago, the coal dealers were doing a rushing business.

The Balkan Tangle.

"It is almost as difficult in these days to make peace as it is to make war," remarks the Boston Evening Transcript in commenting on the present Balkan entanglement. So long as the Allies clung together, it seem comparatively an easy problem to adjust their differences with defeated Turkey. The issue was two-sided and since the Ottoman government was virtually powerless to support any of its claims or protests in regard to suggested boundaries, the peace plans could move smoothly forward.

But when the Allies fell out among themselves, the issue then became manifold and the European Powers who were endeavoring to effect suitable readjustments found divers problems for every one that they had previously faced. While this situation will not materially affect the carrying-out of the peace treaty with Turkey, it has given rather an alarming prospect of a new war which, should it actually break forth, would be far more dangerous to the peace of Europe than the one which has recently ended.

The bone of contention seems to lie among Bulgaria, Servia and Greece. The Greeks claim a right to Salonica, one of the richest prizes wrested from Turkey. The Serbs claim a right to an outlet to the Adriatic. Bulgaria has shown a disposition to resist both these demands. All three countries are in arms, apparently ready to fly to battle at the slightest provocation.

The Powers are firm in their insistence, however, that all the differences be settled tranquilly. Russia and Germany are acting in concert to devise and enforce a plan for peace; and that fact is distinctly reassuring. The Allies themselves seem to have become more tractable within the past week so that the outlook for a prevention of a new war is growing clearer.

What we need is currency in emergencies, such as the first of every month.

Whatever else happens, it is a fine thing to bear in mind that the Atlanta team is within easy hailing distance of the top.

Proofs of the Value Of Dental Inspection.

Scientific records show that backward school children are, almost without exception, physically defective and that among the commonest defects are those of the mouth and teeth. A particularly valuable experiment in this regard was conducted some time ago by the city school board of Cleveland, O. Selecting a school in a crowded district, dental inspectors examined eight hundred and forty-six children, of whom ninety-seven per cent, they found, were grievously in need of treatment. From these, the inspectors took twenty-seven pupils whose teeth were most in need of attention and who were also pronounced laggards or delinquents. "They were treated for a period of ten months," says a report of the experiment, "and the tests to which they were subjected comprised memory, spontaneous association, quickness and accuracy of perception. Their class and psychological records were taken during the time of treatment and for six months subsequent to the treatment."

"The final results showed that in every instance the health of the children improved materially; that their conduct was bettered; that their mental activities and capabilities increased; and that there was a considerable reduction of days lost as a result of illness. Furthermore each child manifested an average increase in working efficiency of practically thirty-seven to fifty per cent.

In the light of such a record, of which there are scores and hundreds equally impressive, can any progressive city neglect to establish a system of dental inspection in its public schools? An initial step to this end was taken in Atlanta last autumn through the influence of the Chamber of Commerce and the local society of dental surgeons and a series of examinations were conducted in two schools. The results were so gratifying and so clearly demonstrated the value and the need of extending the system permanently to all the schools that Council should provide funds for this purpose at its earliest opportunity. Atlanta never made a better investment than in inaugurating several years ago a system of medical examination for its public schools. Money for dental inspection would be equally well appropriated; for, as the record we have quoted shows, there is a vital connection between well kept teeth and bright minds and good conduct.

Increased Revenue From Luxuries

One of the prime purposes in the minds of those who framed the tariff bill, which is now before the Senate with every prospect of passing, was to tax necessities most lightly and luxuries most heavily. Things in which comparatively few people can afford to indulge, they reasoned, should bear higher duties than those which are essential to the subsistence of everyone, a truth which is commonplace as a theory but which, in the school of Standpatters, has been woefully stinted in application.

How well the Democrats have applied this principle is shown in a recent statement by the Senate finance committee to the effect that the higher duties imposed on luxuries, as the bill now stands, will increase the customs receipts from this source from twenty-seven millions to sixty million dollars, "more than double the amount now collected."

Even if we admit that the higher duties will cut down the demand for some of these luxuries, it remains evident that the Government's revenue through this channel will still be very much larger than heretofore; indeed, the Senate committee reckons that by this means the loss of revenue from reductions in other schedules will be reduced to twenty-five million dollars, a deficit which of course the income tax will vastly more than offset.

Man seeks the office, but the officer seeks the man.

If men had to do the housework they would probably live in tents.

The Test.

The most effective speeches, those which have accomplished great deeds and have survived the age or the generation to which they were addressed, have been about twenty or thirty minutes long and, in famous instances, even shorter.

Senator La Follette announces his purpose to speak at least a week on the new tariff bill. As a feat of endurance and volubility, that will be remarkable, indeed; but would it not be better for the Senate, and for the Senator himself, if he would study and profit by the virtues of brevity?

It is rather surprising to the country that so-called "Progressives" should expend so much time and breath in opposing a tariff measure designed to accomplish a reform of the very evils which they have been denouncing? The issue now before the Senate is simply this: Shall we have the new tariff bill, with its reduction of the tax on the necessaries of life, or the Payne-Aldrich bill with its patronage of special interests?

By their vote on this issue, the "Progressives" will stand judged.

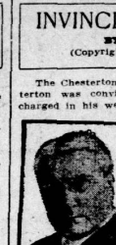
INVINCIBLE IGNORANCE

BY DR. FRANK CRANE.

(Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.)



The Chesterton case in England, where Cecil Chesterton was convicted of criminal libel in that he charged in his weekly newspaper that Godfrey Isaacs had exerted improper influence upon the government in regard to the contracts for wireless telegraphic service, brought forth "invincible ignorance."

Only once in a while does a consummate expression like Grant's "unconditional surrender" or Grover Cleveland's "innocuous "spissitude," capture the ears of "spissitude" capture the ears of the world. The felicitous epithet is as epochal as the great poem or the popular air, and as inexplicable.

Wherefore, re "invincible ignorance," let us animadvert, annotate, gloss and gently expound.

Item: The phrase in question means ignorance that cannot be conquered by evidence and reason. Query: Is there any invincible ignorance? Answer: There is not; for when you find ignorance that knows itself and is hospitable to persuasion, verily it is not ignorance at all, but wisdom of the highest type.

Item: While facts are proverbially stubborn yet in this connection it might be well to point out that non-facts are a coal stubborner.

Item: The royal refuge and ermine robe of "invincible ignorance" is that gilded humbug called "superiority," particularly superiority of blood, race, or family, which is manifest in them that hold to the following creeds:

That the Jones are all better than the Smiths;

That civilization, Christianity and culture are coterminous with stovepipe hats, pie and Wednesday evening meeting.

And that people who have money they never earned, especially those who inherit money, are of a better brand of flesh than those who work for a living.

Item: Is it not curious that we cannot say "invincible knowledge," for all knowledge is amendable and teachable; and that it is ignorance alone that is granite hard?

Item: The populace, by that instinctive art it has of seizing and picturesquely expressing truth, has already furnished a shorter and a harder word for the possessors of "invincible ignorance," towit: "Bonehead."

And the hymn of the bonehead is: "Verily, we are the people, and when we die wisdom shall die with us."

An Appeal for Justice From Georgia Teachers

The following resolution was adopted at the last meeting of the Georgia Educational association:

Whereas, The state has adopted a system whereby the teachers of the state are paid for their work several months after it has been done;

Whereas, This system is not only a great injustice and hardship on the teachers, but is a most serious injury to our children and to our schools;

Whereas, The state pays promptly the salaries of our judges, state officials, the teachers and officials of our state institutions;

Whereas, A discrimination is practiced against our teachers, especially the teachers in the country school who must grapple with the most important educational problems in Georgia; and,

Whereas, This unjust treatment of our teachers is a most serious reflection upon the integrity of the business methods of our state;

Therefore, Be it resolved by the Georgia Educational Association, That we do protest against the unjust treatment, and we implore the legislature at its next session to devise some means by which the teachers of our state may be paid promptly at the close of each month.

City Planning for Cleveland

Following the lead of French and German cities and New York, Seattle and Los Angeles in the United States, Cleveland has provided for a city plan commission in its new charter.

The commission is to be appointed by the mayor and is given broad and comprehensive powers. The design and location of works of art which are, or may become, the property of the city are put under its control. The plan, design and location of public buildings, harbors, bridges, viaducts, street fixtures and other structures, and their removal and alteration, must be passed upon by it. Plans for the location, extension and platting of streets and parks require its approval. Finally the new board is empowered to prepare plans "for the future physical development and improvement of the city."

Frederic C. Howe, a noted city planning expert and a former member of the Cleveland council under Tom Johnson, believes the new commission will solve the housing problem by planning suburban extensions. The setting aside of a large district for this purpose was urged by him upon Cleveland officials a few days ago.

While visiting Mayor Baker, Mr. Howe spoke of the desirability of further extending the boulevards of the city.

"Cleveland is a well planned city," he said. The radial development of its streets makes it possible to plan ideal residence sections in the suburbs. Wide boulevards should be extended through these sections.

"This is the newest idea in park development. It brings the parks to the doorway of the people. These parks can be used twelve instead of four months a year. Cleveland should plan homes for people in moderate circumstances."—Kansas City Star.

THE PHILIPPINES

IV.—PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

Upon the success or failure of the bureau of education depends the future independence of the Philippine islands. The readiness with which the Filipinos respond to the efforts of the American educators, and the facility with which they assimilate the knowledge and precepts taught them, will tell their aptitude for self government. When education shall have developed and uplifted the great mass of the Filipinos into a self supporting, self respecting middle class that knows its rights as well as its limitations, the islands will be ready for independence, in this regard at least. As to readiness, the people are very enthusiastic over the schools. Facility to assimilate is a phase of the problems which time alone will prove adequately.

Public school teaching in the islands began long before the organization of the bureau of education by the civil government. An untold number of young people were instructed in the three "r's" by soldiers. No sooner did troops establish peace in a certain district than their commanding officer would detail officers and enlisted men as school teachers. It was no uncommon sight in the early days to see an armed soldier under a mango tree surrounded by small brown urchins whose sole purpose in life seemed to be to stumble through the English alphabet in a loud voice. In all parts of the islands the school book was just a trifle behind the rifle.

A very elaborate school system devised by Spain for the Philippines was found to exist on paper. It was never perfected and did not pretend to touch the masses. Those whose means permitted they payment of fees in such schools as there were educated their children. The catechism and some Spanish were the boundaries of the average mental horizon. There were a number of alleged colleges in a few populous centers, where science and all leveling research were strictly taboo, and in Manila there was the famous Santo Tomas university, now over 300 years old, whose A. B. was on a par with a high school certificate in this country. The system worked about as follows, according to Hon. Tomas G. del Rosario, a member of the superior advisory board of education of the islands in the last years of Spanish rule, and during American occupation governor of Bataan province and a member of the Philippine assembly:

"The establishment of schools of primary instruction in the municipalities of the Philippine islands and of a normal school in Manila for the education of school masters of such schools was not authorized until December 20, 1863. Before that date public schools were hardly known in the Philippines and instruction was confined solely to the children of parents able to pay for it. This should not be surprising, since even the nineteenth century education in Spain and other parts of Europe was limited to the children of wealthy parents; and the Philippines, as a Spanish colony, could not have more advantages in this respect than the mother country, nor could it be expected that Spain would evince more interest in educating her colonists than her own sons."

School reports given to the general public a few years prior to 1898 set forth a total of 2,143 schools, of which about half were for girls. The regulations were quite elaborate, supplemented by stiff rules, delicious in their minutiae. Governor del Rosario says in a report he made to the insular government that superficially this frame work would:

"Lead one at first sight to believe that popular education in the Philippines had attained the state which it usually reaches in a progressive and civilized country. However, this was superficial only; at bottom everything was contradictory to these laws and provisions, which were nothing but a veneer, a veil which covered the greatest of governmental fictions. The purpose was to show other colonizing nations that in this country the government was paternal and that education was fully developed, while at the same time measures of all kinds were adopted to keep the people submerged in ignorance. Consequently the efforts made were of no avail, notwithstanding the desire to attain that purpose."

The present public school system was organized in 1901 under the direction of Prof. Bernard Moses, secretary of public instruction in the cabinet of the governor general. Later he returned to the faculty of the University of California. He was assisted by Fred W. Atkinson, general superintendent of schools. His successors have been Elmer B. Bryan, David P. Barrows and Frank R. White, the incumbent at this time. The first big move was the arrival of 1,000 American male and female teachers on the transport Thomas in 1901. At present there are thirty-eight divisions in charge of a superintendent, who in turn depends on district supervisors. The number of American teachers has been reduced to 700, while the Filipinos have grown from a mere handful to 1,000 normal or high school graduates who are fairly well paid as insular teachers and 7,500 very poorly paid municipal teachers. The work includes the organization and conduct of:

1. Primary schools, which offer a four-year course, providing instruction in English, simple arithmetic, geography, and manual training work designed to be useful, but which critics consider rather faddish.

2. Intermediate schools, which give three years' additional instruction, and which aim from beginning to end to give vocational training, and which should have even a larger share in the curriculum, in the opinion of many. This course also provides general grade school work up to the standard eighth grade, a course as a preparation for teaching primary grades, a course in farming, a course in housekeeping and household arts, a trade course, and a course in business.

3. High schools in every provincial capital, giving the standard four years of instruction preparatory to the university, modified in certain special schools in various parts of the archipelago so as to fit in with the scope of the Philippine normal school, the Philippine school of commerce and the Philippine school of arts and trades, all of which are located in the city of Manila.

Industrial training in the public schools is being pushed in a very hearty way, but the criticism alluded to above is that this part of the system should be the major course in view of the great industrial needs of the Filipino people and their ignorance of the modern doctrine of efficiency, common to all Malaysian manifold millions. For a time the educational authorities were in grave danger of developing an academic system whose product of hundreds of thousands of full heads and empty hands would have duplicated the unrest in India. It took a two years' fight by two American newspapers—Cablenews-American and the Manila Times—a group of government officials and private citizens and a strong minority within the bureau of education to bring about the desired reform. All instruction, of course, is in English, which is now the official language of the government, including the courts.

In 1903, the first year for which official statistics were compiled, the total school attendance was 140,000 in round numbers, and there were 2,000 school houses, many of which were ramshackle bamboo affairs. In the fiscal year 1911-12 the average attendance was 446,889, with 4,404 school houses. One hundred permanent buildings were either erected or reconstructed last year. Of the total number of school houses only 390 are permanent. The rest are rented, the Philippine government having the same bad habit that the American government has in this regard. A large percentage of the rented school houses could have been bought outright with the rental money already spent on them. This is true of nearly every other department of the Philippine government.

HOOPER WANTS A REST FOR PUBLIC FROM CASE

Attorney Associated With Prosecution, Says State Is Ready for Frank Trial

With Solicitor General Dorsey away on a short vacation, the state's case against Leo M. Frank, who is charged with the murder of Mary Phagan, is now in charge of Frank A. Hooper, the well known attorney, who is associated with the solicitor.

"The state's case is complete," Mr. Hooper said Monday morning, "and we are waiting quietly for the trial on the 30th of the month to come."

"If the defense will stop writing cards," continued Mr. Hooper, "and stop having their friends write them, the public can be given a needed rest from the case until the trial."

Mr. Hooper's statement that the prosecution is quietly waiting for the trial on June 30 is the most authoritative announcement of the date of the trial yet made.

Solicitor General Dorsey has steadfastly refrained from any definite announcement about the time of the trial, but it has been generally understood for some time that the solicitor set the case on the court's calendar for June 30, and it will then remain with the defense as to whether there is a postponement.

While Mr. Hooper's name was not publicly connected with the case until Sunday, it is understood that the solicitor general has been consulting with him for several weeks, and it is said that Mr. Hooper is familiar with every phase of the investigation.

With the state's case regarded as complete it is said that the attorneys and detectives identified with the prosecution are now devoting their energies to preparing for any surprises the defense may spring when the case goes before the court.

It was rumored Monday that the grand jury on Tuesday would take up the case of James Conley, the negro who is a self-confessed accessory after the fact in the killing, but this rumor was without foundation. It was occasioned by an error in the issuance of subpenas. The grand jury, according to its foreman, will devote the entire session Tuesday to routine cases, which have piled up during the vice investigation.

The grand jury foreman, L. H. Beck, also denied the rumor that it had taken up any investigations of third degree work by the detectives in the Phagan or in any other case. "No such investigation is even likely," he said.

to talk the people into seeing things my way."

The doctor is on the Alkahest Lyceum chautauqua course. He has just finished a lecture in Cedartown, and following his appearance at Madison, will depart for the west, taking in Oklahoma, Texas and the Pacific states.

When asked what he had been doing ever since he left Denmark the doctor gave a brief account of his experiences.

"When the controversy came up," he said, "I decided just to let things go for awhile and take a trip for a rest. The best plan, it seemed to me, was to let Peary and the rest of 'em shoot up all the hot shot they had, and wait for my turn. So I took things quietly, went to Europe with my family, and stayed there nearly a year.

"GOING AFTER JUSTICE."

"My wife and children are over there now. The kids are in school.

"Yes, I was in South America for a while, but for the last year or two I've been on the lecture platform. I'm going after justice now. It can come only from a national demand for an investigation of the charges I have made against Peary, and that is the reason I am talking to the people.

"When they see my side of the question, and I believe most of them are seeing it that way, they will turn to their congressmen and get them to bring it to a point in congress. I'm not after a pension or a place in the navy, or anything of that sort. I only want justice and a chance to show up Peary for what he is."

The doctor pointed to the sheets of paper on the table.

"There's my letter to Daniels," he said. "In it I reaffirm my charges against Peary, and as secretary of the navy, it is his duty to investigate the charges against his officers."

THE VOTERS' DEMANDS.

By going straight to the voters the doctor hopes to gain in his end. At every one of his lectures he gives out a postal card addressed to Daniels. On it he requests his friends to send the card to the secretary of the navy.

It says:

"Dear Sir: Rear Admiral ePary wears the stripes of the navy, he is drawing a pension of $6,000 per year from the taxpayers. The national dictates of honor compel such a man to be clean, morally, honest and upright, officially. Dr. Cook publicly has made charges against Peary which relegate this naval officer to the rank of a common thief and degenerate. In his book, 'My Attainment of the Pole,' there are specific charges which call for an investigation. These charges have remained unanswered for three years. Why? In the polar controversy the flag has been dragged through the muck, and this dishonor seems to rest upon a man for whose actions you are responsible. The American people have a right to demand an investigation into the intrigue of the Peary polar propaganda and as one believing in justice at the bar of public opinion, I ask that you take steps to clear this cloud in the eyes of the world."

HOW HE LIKES MEAT.

When these letters begin to flood the office of the secretary, Dr. Cook thinks that Mr. Daniels will have no choice but to call for the investigation. By next September, the doctor says, he will be through his lecture work, and he believes that the investigation will come next writer.

"Do you like raw dog, doctor?" he was asked.

He laughed.

"It's not bad, frozen, you know," he said. "I always like my meat a little bloody, and big hunks of it, whether it's dog meat or plain beef. No, I haven't called for dog meat in any Atlanta restaurants. When you live on polar fare for two and a half years, it's fine to get back to good stuff, and I always live on the best when I return to civilization, pie being especially good. Dog, you see, is eaten raw always and is rather uncomfortably slippery like eels when it goes down."

Commenting on the expedition to the north of Stefansson, the Canadian explorer who sailed Tuesday for the arctics, Dr. Cook declared emphatically that the expedition was merely for the purpose of acquiring more land for Canada.

REAL MISSION, MORE LAND.

"Stefansson is a reputable explorer all right," he said, "even though he is a newcomer. But his expedition is not the mere scientific party it portends to be. It will undoubtedly do good scientific work, but its real mission is to acquire more land for Canada.

"Between Alaska and Greenland it is generally believed that there is a new continent, a great deal of land which belongs to nobody and which nobody claims. All Stefansson has to do is to leave his claim papers in a shack on the land it belongs to Canada. Canada has been doing it for years and the United States didn't know a thing about it."

The doctor doesn't think he will make another try at the north or south pole. At any rate, he won't try it very soon.

"I'm good for another ten years at this lecture game," he declared, hoisting his sandalled feet to the bed and lighting a "Cook's special" cigarette.

"I like the south and of course I like Atlanta. It has the New York atmosphere. The United States is all right. Just because one man in ten million happens to be a mucker, I'm not sore against the whole United States."

CAMERA CLUB PLANS A PROGRAM OF PICTURES

Will Show Slides Exchanged by Other Clubs—Has Handsome Quarters

The last meeting of the Atlanta Camera club was held Tuesday night June 10, in their own quarters, occupying the entire third floor on the southwest corner of Broad and Alabama streets.

The meeting was largely attended and enthusiastic. After a short business session and a general discussion of the possibilities before the club, there was a technical talk by Cliff Reckling, of the Hammer Dry Plate company, and also a stereopticon exhibition from members' slides made in various parts of the country.

The house committee was voted thanks for the selection and furnishings of the club rooms in such a pleasing and striking manner.

A number of new members were secured at the close of the meeting.

The location of the club rooms is ideal, being convenient to every car line in the city, and centrally located and accessible to the majority of members. A special feature of the club is its program for monthly lantern slide lectures and exhibits, at which will be shown to members and their friends and families, slides from other clubs in other cities of the United States as well as some in foreign countries, portraying views of international interest. The club will provide slides and lectures in exchange for this service, the slides being made by members and showing points of interest about Atlanta—its streets, its peoples and surrounding territory, historic battlefields, etc.

CURB ON CORPORATIONS GOV. SLATON'S FIRST IDEA

He Confers With Comptroller on the State's Income and Outgo

One of the principal points to be stressed by Governor Slaton in his inaugural address to the legislature will be the necessity for that body to put the soft pedal on appropriations.

The new governor will, it is said, insist that there be no new appropriations this year except such as are absolutely necessary to maintain the state's institutions properly. He will show that for the past several years the legislature has been gradually increasing appropriations beyond the state's revenues.

In order to further fortify himself with data illustrating this point, Governor Slaton spent some time with Comptroller General W. A. Wright Monday morning going over statistics.

Jackson Bond Election

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

JACKSON, Ga., June 16.—There is keen interest in Jackson over the approaching election for sewerage bonds. The election will be held on July 8 and the citizens will vote on an issue of $25,000 for the purpose of installing a complete system of sewerage. The bonds which will be in denominations of $1,000 each will bear interest at the rate of 5 per cent, and will mature at once, the idea now being for the city to buy its own bonds. The sentiment seems to be favorable to the bond issue and it is believed there will be no trouble in carrying the bonds.

"Blue Tag" Furniture Sale

True to the Best Traditions of Any That Have Gone Before

A Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co. "Blue Tag" Furniture Sale!

To Atlantans who recall the fine economies of "The Blue Tag" sales the mere announcement that here now is another would doubtless be sufficient to hurry them to the store, filled with the confidence that this is their opportunity to buy furniture to greatest advantage.

But this "Blue Tag" sale is planned to outdo all others!

Yes, to outdo ALL others. It has not been an easy task to prepare such a sale; the records and traditions of the others mark them as trade triumphs---as classics in the furniture business; but the guiding spirit of progress whispers that this one shall begin where the others left off and become a monumental merchandise movement only after it eclipses it predecessors.

And so have the preparations gone forward!

Judge for yourself the possibilities it offers you. Here is the South's greatest furniture stock.

Every piece of it was chosen after careful, very careful examination as the best of its kind for regular selling.

It is worthy furniture, right furniture, built to last year on year.

And Right Now

Every piece of furniture, excepting summer furniture and several makes the prices of which we have contracted to maintain, in this, the South's greatest stock; is offered at a substantial reduction from its regular price. In fact, substantial reduction hardly expresses the vigorous price reductions you will find here.

And this in face of the fact that right now furniture prices are climbing to higher levels.

So whether it be---

Bedroom===Including Brass Beds===Dining Room or Living Room Furniture

Or all of these that you need---and in this month of brides and of new home-making there are many who will want furnishings for entire homes---now is the big opportunity. The tremendous varieties here mean that you may select to a nicety just the furniture you would have in your home. The tremendous reductions mean that you may save as you had never expected.

So come tomorrow morning. You will find the Blue Tags on everything; they tell their own story and it is an interesting story of fine savings.

Period Furniture

It is worthy of particular note in this noteworthy event that, although every little separate chair, rocker, desk, table, chiffonier and the like in stock (with those exceptions already noted) is included, some of the healthiest reductions have been made on the rich and true sets of Period Furniture and reproductions of antique pieces—Sheraton, Jacobean, William and Mary, Chippendale and others. Sets for bedroom, dining room and living room.

Several other numbers notably, Moszkowski's Polonaise and Liszt's Gondolerie, proved not only the clear touch and excellent teachings of the player, but her thorough appreciation of every phase of emotion the masters endeavored to portray.

Gilder-Johnson

Characteristic of the old south was the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Gilder to Mr. Oliver Johnson, which was solemnized on the 12th of June in Newberry, S. C.

The handsome colonial home which has been in the family for over 100 years was a charming scene for the event, and the hospitality of antebellum days prevailed in the entertainment of the many guests.

The house was beautifully decorated for the occasion, the ceremony being performed on the broad porch, the wedding party grouped between the tall white columns, which were banked at the base by masses of palms and ferns. Tall white pedestals mounted with baskets filled with Bermuda lilies, which were the flowers used.

The attendants were Miss Pauline Gilder, maid of honor; Mr. Alonzo Johnson, of Atlanta, best man; Miss Kate Nichols, of Spartanburg, S. C.; Miss Butler Fant and Miss Sarah Houseal, of Newberry, bridesmaids; Mr. Burton Clarke and Mr. Lewis Gregg, of Atlanta; Mr. Fant Gilder and Dr. J. K. Gilder, Jr., of Newberry, groomsmen, and Misses Pauline Fant and Nancy Fox were ribbon bearers. Little Miss Katherine Fant was flower girl.

The bride was given away by her father, Dr. J. K. Gilder, and was charming in her wedding gown of white charmeuse satin, trimmed with lace and seed pearls. Her tulle veil was caught with orange blossoms and she carried orchids, showered with valley lilies. Her only ornament was a pearl bracelet, the gift of the groom. The maid of honor wore a gown of white satin brocade and carried an arm cluster of Easter lilies. The bridesmaids were white accordion chiffon gowns over flesh pink satin and carried baskets of pink roses. The ribbon bearers and flower girl wore handmade lingerie frocks and pink sashes.

A brilliant reception followed the service, the house being an effective setting for the wedding guests, festoons of smilax with palms, ferns and quantities of flowers showing in contrast to the old ivory woodwork.

Mr. Johnson and his bride left for Tate Spring and will spend several weeks at Asheville and other North Carolina resorts before returning to Atlanta.

Among the out-of-town guests were Miss Lida Fischer, of New York; Miss Lola Johnson, of Atlanta; Mrs. Williams, of Birmingham; Mr. Bonneville, of Virginia; Miss Duncan, of Union, S. C.; Dr. and Mrs. Knowlton, of Columbia.

SUNDAY AT COUNTRY CLUB

The return of summer yesterday was welcomed by club members who filled the links and courts at East Lake, crowded the cool terrace at the Piedmont club and the broad porches at the Capital City Country club.

The links at the latter club also had their quota of enthusiastic golfers with the additional presence of two white cranes that divided their time standing on their long reed-like legs on the edge of the lake or watching from the limb of a tall pine, the equally white clothed followers of the little ivory balls along the fair greens between the bordering pines.

White and green striped awnings have been stretched across the uncovered portions of the club porch and the brightness of flower-filled boxes have added to the attractiveness of the club since the beginning of its new regime.

Mr. Maddox, president of the Capital City club and Mrs. Maddox, with their son, Baxter, were among those spending the afternoon at the club and with Mr. and Mrs. William H. Kiser, and their sons, Mr. and Mrs. William Lawson Peel and Mrs. William Tilt, of New York, formed a congenial group. Mr. Kiser and the boys joining the party after a cooling dip in the lake.

Mrs. Till, who was also a pretty visiting guest at the Piedmont club's dinner, dance Saturday evening, wore a smart suit of black taffeta the short sleeved coat worn over a white blouse whose long sleeves were finished with a band of black velvet ribbon. Her hat of black taffeta had as its only trimming a band of ribbon tied in a loose bow on one side, a crimson rose giving a touch of color.

Among others enjoying the club were: Mr. and Mrs. Walter Andrews, Mr. and Mrs. Rix Stafford, Mr. and Mrs. John Kiser, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Woodside, Jr., Mrs. Luther Read, Mrs. Carhart, Mrs. Devine, Mr. and Mrs. John Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Dargan, Mrs. Clarence Knowles, Mr. and Mrs. J. Quite Comfortable These Days

Is the man or woman who knows something about the art of warm weather dressing.

So many things are planned for our comfort that it is our own fault if we don't know about them.

On the one hand we see people fretting and boiling in great physical discomfort; while on the other we note with envy cheerful folk who are cool, comfortable, and contented.

The reason is that some persons are smarter than others in selecting their apparel for summer wear. A careful reading of the advertisements appearing daily in THE JOURNAL will teach anyone willing to learn, all the up-to-date tricks in summer dressing that brains have devised for the benefit and comfort of mankind.

The "ad-reading habit," applied to THE JOURNAL, will net you gratifying returns.

THE EVENING STORY

AUNT JEMIMA

"Oh, of course we can't write and tell her not to come," grumbled Ethel. "But, mother, she'll have to sleep on the davenport in the living room, or else you will."

"I won't mind," hastily.

"What does she want to visit us for when she hasn't seen us for fifteen years?" growled Harry. "I'll bet she looks just like her name, Aunt Jemima. You girls will have to show her the sights, I won't."

"Not me," said his youngest sister, Eugenia, with decision. "I see myself escorting her shabby old lady. She's seventy-three, isn't she, mother?"

"Seventy-two," said their mother, a tired-eyed little woman, who was busy keeping enough batter cakes on the breakfast table to satisfy three healthy girls and two hungry young men.

"And this is the first time in twenty years she's been away from that small tenant-ure village where she was born. I'll bet she wears bonnets and a bonnet of the vintage of '47," jeered Victor.

"I'm busy myself every night for two weeks," said Nora, in an unsatisfactory tone. "Mother can take her to a nickel show. She'll think that's a treat."

"Now," said their mother nervously, "that you'll be nice to her. I had no place to stay but a boarding house before I married your father and she had me to come to. She was good to me. Everything that she could do to help me with my clothes she was glad to do. He was her favorite nephew. I dare say, she's old fashioned and shabby. But please don't mind."

She looked around entreatingly at the circle of mutinous young faces. She remembered their father's advice when he lay on his deathbed, eight years before, "Don't spoil the children, Mary. Don't wait on them so much, or you'll be sorry. Sometimes she feared she had spoiled them. Sometimes she wondered with an aching heart if they cared for her, as little as their careless, selfish ways denoted. But she always tried to suppress the wonder. The girls were busy stenographers. The boys worked hard in a wholesale grocery house. It was only because they were busy that they seemed selfish. If they had time they would have noticed things—that her bonnet was shabby, for instance, and that she got tired of staying home every day cooking, every evening reading.

"I hope you'll be nice to her," she repeated earnestly.

"Gee! I'm late," cried Victor, and bounded up. Harry followed with a rush.

"You surely don't expect us to parade her around town," Ethel said irritably. "Anyway, I'm rushed to death."

They all fled out, a handsome, well-dressed group. Their mother sighed, but she had to hurry to get the dishes washed and the laundry started. She did not mention Aunt Jemima again until a week later, when she told Harry that the old lady was coming that day. Could he get off at noon, meet the train and bring her out? "I'm not used to finding depots," she told her son coaxingly.

"I can't," he said, with vim. "Tell her to get in a cab and come out." Then he hurried out before she could urge him. Victor couldn't, either. Nor the girls. She had to go herself.

Despite her inexperience she found the depot, found Aunt Jemima, a little old lady, with shining white hair, sharp eyes, and—her heart sank—a shabby black cape and skirt. The first evening passed more pleasantly than she had hoped. The girls and boys were glad to find Aunt Jemima a jolly old lady, kissed and petted her and—with a fair semblance of affectoon, told her how glad they were to see her, and, hurried away, considerate and entertained in lively, entertaining fashion all evening.

Ethel's eyebrows went up when Aunt Jemima placidly let out that she would stay probably a month or longer, and Eugenia grimaced. Their mother was alarmed, but Aunt Jemima wasn't looking at them, and rambled on in unconscious joy of an assured welcome.

The next evening every one had an engagement and hurried from the dinner table to dress—a dance, they explained airily to Aunt Jemima—and the next they went away, Eugenia to a theater, Ethel visiting. The following night they lounged at home for an hour after dinner; then Victor sauntered out, Harry and Ethel to a nickel show and the others went somewhere else.

Their mother and Aunt Jemima sat at home. "I'm glad like to see you glad," said their mother apologetically. "And they work hard all day." Her face flushed under Aunt Jemima's sharp eyes. She was miserably conscious that her accusing words were inadequate.

"I understand," said Aunt Jemima easily. "You remember Cousin Pellew, who lived across the road. She's here in the city. Married well, and her children have turned out well. She wrote that her oldest boy bought her an electric runabout last year. Let's go over and see her tomorrow. I got her address."

"I'd like to," was the eager reply. "Only," her voice quavered, "I guess my clothes are pretty seedy. Next month maybe I'll get a new coat. I'd hate to have Ruthy see the one I got now."

"Of course," said Aunt Jemima. She cleared her throat, hemmed, hawed and finally blurted out, "Sort of a contrast in the way Eugenia and Ethel and Nora dress—and you. Nora's charmeuse dress cost $55, didn't it?"

"They have to dress well," quickly. "You see, they work."

"I see one thing, Mary Brady," grimly, "that you are a hard-working old fool. I'm surprised at you. It's your fault. What did you train 'em that way for?"

"I don't know," abandoning pretense. "I wanted 'em to have as easy a time as I could. And they don't mean to be selfish; they're just thoughtless."

"Yes," calmly. "I guess I'll jolt some thought into 'em."

Mary Brady looked frightened. If Aunt Jemima undertook to lecture them they might say things.

"Don't worry," said Aunt Jemima. "I'll handle 'em carefully, as if they was young chickens with the pip."

The next evening Ethel, who got home first, fussed and fumed at the cold stove and no dinner in sight. Eugenia, arriving ten minutes later, rummaged and found a note on the dining-room mantel, saying: "Four ma and I have gone to a matinee. Maybe we will get dinner downtown. Fry yourself some eggs, and there's some cookies in the pantry."

Nora, coming with Victor and Harry fifteen minutes later, found a peeved pair. "I like 'em!" stormed Harry. "When a fellow works all day he wants dinner. Cook me four eggs, Ethel. And, for goodness' sake, make better coffee than you do at picnics."

"Me!" sniffed Ethel. "I'll eat some cookies. Fry yourself some eggs. I've got an engagement at 7."

Eugenia, the poorest cook in the family, made coffee. "Taste's like dishwater," growled Victor. "Aunt Jemima has no business dragging mother around town. Like as not they'll get lost. Mother hasn't been downtown twice in three years."

"No," said Nora soberly, "come to think, she hasn't. She nibbled a cooky thoughtfully and pushed her coffee away.

"If you don't like it make some yourself," snapped Eugenia. "I was starved," petulantly. "My mouth was all fixed for a good dinner."

Victor had an engagement, but Harry, Nora and Eugenia sat at home, too depressed by lack of a hot dinner to enjoy the newspapers or a nickel show. As the hours wore on, past 10, to 11, past 11 to 12, they faced each other frightenedly. "I bet they're lost," cried Harry angrily. "I shall telephone the police."

Then the front door clicked and they flew to meet them. They came in smiling, with the elated air of having spent a pleasant day. Nora stared and so did Eugenia. Their mother did not look the same.

"Aunt Jemima bought me a new coat and hat," she explained nervously to their questioning glance. She had to repeat the explanation to Ethel and Victor, who came in just then. "I hate to let her, but she insisted. And she got box seats, and the restaurant—I couldn't mortify her with my old clothes, you know," apologetically.

"I'm sure, Aunt Jemima," said Ethel strongly, "that we can afford to buy—" But her voice trailed into silence under Aunt Jemima's sharp, scornful look.

"We worried about you," said Nora.

"Well, we'd have come home for dinner, but by the time your mother gets the dishes washed at night it's too late for her to go any place. And we got sort of tired staying here alone every day. I don't see how she stands it," said Aunt Jemima blandly; "just cooking and washing and sweeping. Did you folks make out to get dinner? I hope you did, 'cause we're going to a friend's tomorrow night."

"I never thought," squirmed Ethel, her face red. Eugenia looked down at the floor. Harry was staring. Aunt Jemima ashamed of their mother's clothes! Victor blushed over the $60 that he had paid a tailor that day.

Nora looked straight at Aunt Jemima, ashamed but frank. "It is very kind of you," she said "To give mother a day of pleasure." Then she hurriedly left the room.

Aunt Jemima saw that she winked back the tears as she went. She leaned over and whispered to the abashed mother: "Pip's awfully easy cured. Didn't I tell you?"

LITTLE STORIES FOR BED TIME

By Thornton W. Burgess

The Laughing Brook was merry. "And so am I," cried Jerry. Grandfather Frog said he was, too. And Spotty was, as all folks knew.

The trees stood with wet feet where just a little while before had been the strang pond in the Green Forest, the pond made by the dam of Paddy the Beaver. In the dam was a great hole made by Paddy himself. Through the Green Forest rang the laughter of the Laughing Brook, for once more the water ran deep between its banks. And in the hearts of Grandfather Frog and Jerry Muskrat and Spotty the Turtle was laughter, for now the Smiling Pool would smile once more and they could go home in peace and happiness. And there was one more who laughed. Who was it? Why, Paddy the Beaver, to be sure, and his was the best laugh of all, for it was because he had brought happiness to others.

"You beat me up here to the dam, but you won't get me back to the Smiling Pool," cried Jerry Muskrat to Spotty the Turtle.

Spotty laughed good-naturedly. "You'd better not stop to eat or play or sleep on the way, then," said he, "for I shall keep right on going all the time. I've found that is the only way to get anywhere."

"Let us all go down together," said Grandfather Frog. "We can help each other in the bad places."

Jerry Muskrat laughed until he had to hold his sides at the very thought of Grandfather Frog or Spotty the Turtle being able to help him, but he is very good-natured, and so he agreed that they should all go down together. Paddy the Beaver said that he would go, too; so off the four started—Jerry Muskrat and Paddy the Beaver swimmings side by side, and behind them Grandfather Frog and Spotty the Turtle. Now, Spotty the Turtle is a very slow traveler on land, but in the water Spotty is not so slow. In fact, was not long before Granfather Frog found that he was the one who could not keep up. You see, while he is a great diver and can swim fast for a short distance, he is soon tired out. Pretty soon he was puffing and blowing and dropping further and further behind. By and by Spotty the Turtle looked back. There was Grandfather Frog just tumbling head first over a little waterfall. He came up choking and gasping and kicking his long legs very feebly. Spotty climbed out on a rock and waited. He helped Grandfather Frog out beside him, and when Grandfather Frog had once more gotten his breath, what do you think Spotty did? Why, he took Grandfather Frog right on his back and started on again.

Now, Jerry Muskrat and Paddy the Beaver, being great swimmers, were soon out of sight. All at once Jerry remembered that they had agreed to all go down together, and down in his heart he felt a little bit mean when he looked for Grandfather Frog and Spotty the Turtle and could see nothing of them. So he and Paddy sat down to wait. After what seemed a long time they saw something queer bobbing along in the water.

"It's Grandfather Frog!" cried Paddy the Beaver.

"No; it's Spotty the Turtle," said Jerry Muskrat.

"It's both," replied Paddy, beginning to laugh.

Just then Spotty tumbled over another waterfall which he hadn't seen, and, of course, Grandfather Frog went with him and lost his hold on Spotty's back.

"I have an idea," cried Paddy. "What is it?" asked Jerry.

"Why, Grandfather Frog can ride on my flat tail," replied Paddy, "and then we'll go slow enough for Spotty to keep up with us."

And so it was that just as the first moonbeams kissed the Smiling Pool out of the Laughing Brook came the merriest party that ever was seen.

"Chugarum!" said Grandfather Frog. "It is good to be home, and I think I would travel often if I could have the tail of Paddy the Beaver for a boat."

What Anne Rittenhouse Says

The prominence of buckles is important. They range from metal to rosebuds and all the various varieties are really very pleasing. It is probably the influence of the Louise Seize that has brought about the wearing of these gaudy ornaments by women, because in his day there was a vast amount of them used, more especially by men than by women.

The first intimation that the fashionable world had that they were to be popular was in their appearance on slippers. When they first arrived as a finish to pumps they brought down upon them quite a good deal of criticism. Conservative women said that never would they wear such conspicuous things on their feet in the street and they were not quite sure that they were advisable even for evening, as they made the foot look larger.

This wave of disapproval lasted only for a few moments and soon the very women who condemned the buckle were appearing abroad with them on patent leather slippers. Such is the way custom makes followers.

Good taste, however, like good manners, remain the same, although they are influenced by the changing times, and those who dress really well have never been able to satisfy themselves that an afternoon slipper intended for the house or a carriage is the proper thing for the pavement. There are too many kinds of shoes for all occasions that are good looking, comfortable and smart for any woman to think that she must wear a high-heeled patent leather one at the wrong hour.

However, it is like crying in the wilderness to make such a protest. Everything that can be said has been said against the wearing of buckled shoes in public, but women will do as they please to the end of time, and there you are.

Buckles on Gowns.

The mass of ornaments that are offered for shoes are extravagantly made and nearly all of them are exceptionally attractive. They ahe of cut steel, faceted to give brilliancy and of German rhinestone set in a silver composition. They are oval and square, round and oblong. They are sometimes threaded with velvet ribbon and again placed on the leather itself. The new idea is to place them above the vamp and lift them well out from the foot in order to shorten the length from ankle to toe and to tighten the appearance of the instep.

Now all these buckles are used for gowns. If one is economically inclined or can not afford the price of more than one pair of handsome buckles—and they are costly—she can make them adjustable, although the process is somewhat difficult where the shoes are concerned.

Other buckles are made of ribbon, of roses, and especially of metal cloth, which is stretched out over a pasteboard foundation and gives quite a fifteenth century touch to the gown. These buckles are used usually as a means of catching drapery. They are not confined to the waist line, although one sees them there as an ornament sometimes in connection with a rose, sometimes without.

Home made buckles are in the height of fashion because women have found that they can make them out of scraps of material that have been left over from handsome gowns or upholstery. If you would know the truth. The kind of house decorations that are used today represent the most artistic designs in fabric making and shrewd women have learned to go to such departments for scraps of beautiful stuffs that will serve for buckles or revers or other bits of ornamentation.

And just here it may not be amiss to suggest such pieces of brocade as material for slippers. Next to the gold and silver cloth slippers those of brocade are most fashionable. They started in Paris several years ago with Callot's mannequins; then the other houses took them up and now we are promised a decided fashion in them for autumn.

ATHLETICS SURE TO WIN

—HUGH JENNINGS.

"The Athletics are the class of the league. They will win the pennant," was a statement made by Hughey Jennings this morning, says the Washington Star.

"Early in the spring I believed that Washington had a splendid chance to finish on top, but the series of accidents which the team encountered and which weakened it greatly has, in my judgment, put it out of the running. The Athletics are going them to have any sort of a slump unless they meet with accidents. The club has a great team, and I might add that it is not getting any the worst of the umpiring.

"My team is going along about as well as could be expected. It is not a team which can be figured to have a chance to win, but it is developing rapidly and in time will be a good ball team."

In speaking of the umpiring in the American league this season, Jennings remarked: "There are only three or four competent umpires in the league this year; the others are distinctly unfit for the position and every player and manager in the league who has the nerve to express an opinion will tell you so.

CLIMB BY THE LOOKOUTS SENSATION OF THE WEEK

Unexpected reversals of form, sensational sports and a general shake-up in the percentage column have been the features of the Southern association pennant race during the past week.

By all odds the most remarkable event during the past seven days has been the spectacular spurt of Norman Elberfeld's Chattanooga club, which Atlanta by a narrow margin. The chief Atlanta b ya narrow margin. The chief agency in accomplishing this has been the excellent work of Covaleskie, whose pitching thus far eclipses anything that he has done since his advent to the league.

Mobile, playing to form, continues to lead the league, having won forty games in sixty-three played. Chattanooga, as the result of having defeated Nashville Sunday, stands almost 100 points below Manager Mique Finn's team. A series of defeats has forced Nashville to drop from second to fifth place, Montgomery leading Manager Schwartz's club by a small margin. Memphis, by winning today to Montgomery, stands in undisputed possession of sixth place.

The fight for the title of "tail-enders" continues between Birmingham and New Orleans, the latter club still retaining its firm hold at the foot of the column. Unusually cold weather during the week failed to chill the enthusiasm of the "fans," although baseball experts attribute many of the upsets of the last seven days to the drop in temperature. With the return of seasonable weather today the coming week is sure to prove an interesting one throughout the league.

Merkle Hurt Fighting Ump

ZANESVILLE, O., June 16.—In an exciting exhibition game here Sunday afternoon between the New York Nationals and the local Inter-State league team, the Giants won by the score of 5 to 4, although Umpire Frank Newhouse, or the Inter-State league, declared the game forfeited to Zanesville 9 to 0, following his fight with Merkle, of the Giants. Merkle in the eighth objected to Newhouse's decision on a close play at first and finally made a pass at the umpire. Newhouse hit the New York first baseman over the head with his mask and brought blood from the gash, then ordered him from the game. Merkle refused to go and the umpire then forfeited the game to Zanesville, 9 to 0.

Duke W[illegible] Back With Team's Work

NEW YORK, June 16.—The Duke of Westminster, who backed the English polo team on its trip to this country in the unsuccessful attempt to lift the Westchester polo cup "has only just started time enough to get the trophy back to England." This is about as far as any of the English players here would commit themselves today as to the possibility of a challenge for the cup next year.

When the team sails for England on Thursday it will take back only twenty-seven of the forty-two ponies which were brought over for the tournament. A few of the ponies have been sold at there are a number of the older ones still to be disposed of. This week, it is understood, a start will be made that the Duke proposes to improve his stable in preparation for another challenge. The time limit for a challenge for a series next year is December 31.

A special cable dispatch published today hinted the possibility of a challenge from Germany. Polo is coming into great popularity there under the inspiration of the crown prince and it is said there is a general desire to send a representative team to ...merica, but probably this will not be realized for a few years at least.

JOE BIRMINGHAM.
Boy manager of Cleveland baseball team, whose aggressive tactics have made the Naps the sensation of 1913.

PHILADELPHIA CLUBS HOLD LEAD GAINED WITH OPENING

HOW CLUBS PLAY TODAY

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 16.—Birmingham and Chattanooga clash here this afternoon, the starter of a three-game series. Recent success has fanned enthusiasm in the local camp. Weather clear. Batteries for today will be Thompson and Mayer for Birmingham *and Sommers and Street for Chatta-*nooga.

*MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 16.—*For the first game of the series with New Orleans beginning today the local team have decided upon Kissinger and Seabough in the battery positions, while the visitors will probably send in McIntyre and Adams. The weather is clear and warm.

*MONTGOMERY, Ala., June 16.—*The Montgomery club reached here at noon today to play eighteen games on the home grounds. The local team opens this afternoon with Mobile for a series of three games. Montgomery fans are wild over the splendid record made by the club on the recent road trip, and prospects are for a great crowd at the opener. Manning and Gribbens for the home team and Berger and Smith for the visitors are doped to work today. The weather is clear and hot.

Few Notes On Games

Starr, Mobile's second sacker, was laid on the shelf in yesterday's game with a broken finger. Sentell finished the game and will probably fill his shoes for the next week.

The Giants engaged in an exhibition game with Zanesville yesterday which resulted disastrously for Merkle. In the eighth Merkele objected to Umpire Newhouse's decision and made a pass at his umps. The bush leaguer, however refused to be bullied, and came back with his mask, bringing the blood from Merkle's scalp with a fierce blow. The game was forfeited to the Zanesville club.

Daley and Callahan are both credited with assists from the outfield in the twelve-round bout between the Lookouts and the Vols. Both boys also rang up one on their batting averages.

The heavy stick work of Smith figured largely in Brooklyn's defeat of Chicago yesterday.

Griner, the ex-Mooney star who is debuting in the major leagues, won his game for St. Louis with a single in the ninth.

By way of letting us know he is still with us, Patsy Devlin scored Boston's only run yesterday with a long triple.

Cleveland used seventeen men in an ineffective effort to stop the Senators yesterday. Their battery read as follows: Kahler, Cullop, Gregg, Blanding and Land and Carisch.

LONDON, June 16.—The London morning papers publish little comment on the result of the international polo match. The natural disappointment at the defeat is tempered by the satisfaction in the fine struggle put up by the Englishmen.

Newbern Wins

NEWBERN, Ga., June 14.—In a beautiful and exciting game here Friday, Newbern defeated Lithonia by the score of 2 to 1, the final count being in the tenth inning. Batteries were Sanders and Smith for Newbern and Ragan, Brooks and Evens for the visitors. Sanders pitched a beautiful game, giving up three hits and striking out fourteen men. He also saved the game by stopping a hot line drive with his bare hands in the ninth inning.

Ellison got a two-base hit. The Newbern team secured eleven hits—Ellison three, Porter three and C. Smith two. The Newbern fans wish to compliment the Lithonia players on their excellent playing and gentlemanly conduct. Newbern won the amateur championship last season and expects to win first place again this season. We would like to arrange games with Madison and other towns of prominence.

Japs Are Defeated

TOKIO, June 14.—The touring baseball nine of Leland Stanford, Jr., university defeated the University of Keio today, 1 to 0. The Americans made four hits to Keio's two, and the Japanese made three errors.

Phillies Went Strong Past Week, While Giants Were Held Even

NEW YORK, June 16.—The efforts of other contenders to cut down the lead of the two Philadelphia clubs in the major leagues during the past week were futile, both the Phillies and the Athletics continuing their winning way and piling up points against a slump. The National league team made the better showing, winning six out of seven games by consistent batting, combined with excellent fielding and a fighting spirit that refused to admit defeat until the third out of the final inning.

In a general way the same holds true of the New York club, for the Giants are making a game struggle. While the Quakers were defeating Cincinnati the Giants were having a far more difficult task with Chicago and Pittsburg. The Cubs fought desperately in every game of the four. There were three ten-inning contests and the best the Giants could do was to break even. Against the Pirates New York won three straight, giving their week's "record a balance on the right side.

Brooklyn dropped five out of six games, with the result that the Cubs and Superbas changed places.

The Superbas played in hard luck. The worst happened when Catcher Erwin broke his leg in Saturday's game at Chicago and on Friday Rightfielder Cathers, of the St. Louis club, suffered a similar injury.

The performance of Pittsburg was disappointing. In the lower division teams Boston was the only one to make a winning fight. General all round weakness was shown by St. Louis and Cincinnati.

The games played, won, lost, runs, hits, errors and men left on bases during the week in the National league is shown in the following table:

Phila	7	6	1	36	67	13	40
New York	7	5	2	34	82	10	43
Chicago	7	5	2	25	59	9	44
Brooklyn	6	1	5	25	55	19	32
Pittsburg	6	2	4	35	62	3	29
Boston	7	5	2	40	60	8	52
St. Louis	7	2	5	33	68	13	52
Cincinnati	7	1	6	16	46	13	35

In the American league the Athletics showed their right to lead was based on real playing ability, winning four out of six games after running their straight victories up to fifteen. St. Louis turned and broke the sequence by winning the third of the series. Cleveland followed St. Louis into Philadelphia. The one game in Philadelphia and one in Boston were Cleveland's only victories. Washington got a .500 per cent break against Detroit and Chicago, and started a new fight for a better rank-ing by winning all but one of the six games played. The world's champions opened by breaking Pitcher Falkenburg's run of ten straight victories. St. Louis won only one game in six, while Detroit did better, getting an even break on the week.

The New York club achieved a mark similar to the Tigers, and in view of the previous record leads many to believe that Manager Chance is at last whipping the Yankees into shape. The records of the American league clubs, showing games played, won, lost, runs, hits, errors and men left on bases, are:

Phila	6	4	2	25	49	8	35
Cleveland	6	2	4	18	49	11	37

New York	6	3	3	14	47	8	42

"BASEBALL'S FIGHTING LEADER," IS TITLE GIVEN TO JOE BIRMINGHAM

Boss Tenny.

(Student of Inside Baseball, Who has *Traveled with Naps Since Season Open-*ed.)

There's a brand new, fighting Irishman in the battle front of baseball, and when the names of McGraw, Jennings, Kelly, Ewing, Tebeau and other great Celts are mentioned hereafter that of Joseph L. Birmingham, who has made the Cleveland team the surprise of the game this year, must be included.

Birmingham is a real boy manager. He won't be 28 until December 3, and he is the youngest manager that ever played in the major leagues.

"Birmy" has given the Naps a fighting spirit in contrast to the once meek aggregation ready to let the other fellow tramp upon its neck.

Critics who have picked the Athletics, Washington and Boston to run away realize there's a new sort of ball team in Cleveland. Clark Griffith alone refuses to believe, and says Birmingham has "conned" the team into playing ahead of its natural gait.

Up to June 4, the team had knocked 35 pitchers from the box in winning 32 of the 45 games.

In 12 games they came from behind when seemingly beaten. They finish like the Detroit club of other days. These things have made the fans talk about the boy-manager who has made the team one of the best fighting machines in baseball.

Birmingham is a manager who would bring joy to the heart of Patsy Tebeau and the old crew of his day. He broke a leg trying to turn defeat into victory and would have broken two could he have reached the game.

No longer does "Birmy" use crutches, but when his broken leg was torturing him at every move he was on the bench with the master baseball brain directing his team.

He has erased the word "quit" from the Nap dictionary. There isn't a rule for his players to obey. "You're all men and know as well as I do how to care for yourselves," he told them. And not a player cuts loose. The others wouldn't stand for it. The honor system works like a charm.

"Gross up the other fellow. Figure out what he expects and don't do it," are two Birminghamesque orders.

One day Birmingham bunted with two men out and the bases filled, winning the game. The team was a run behind and the time-honored thing was to hit the ball hard and pray for a hit. Birmingham, the opposing team, the pitcher went to pieces and had to be taken out.

Another day when the opponents were looking for bunts Birmingham ordered his players to slug. They knocked three pitchers from the box that day.

No one looking out on the field goes with Birmingham. Games are no longer tea parties for the rivals. And every man, from LaJoie, who is playing the game of his wonderful career, to the rawest recruit, firmly believes they will win in the world's series next fall.

There isn't a factional difference on the team. The players are fighting for everything, but not among themselves. And, what is more to the point, they are demanding and getting their share on the paths, hitting close to .300 as a team, and Joe Jackson is clouting the ball around the .450 mark.

Tail Enders Now Climbing

Sally League Race Growing Bit More Exciting—Savannah Holds Lead

Improvement in fielding and hitting by the tail-end clubs of the South Atlantic league during the past week has tightened the pennant race and put real ginger into the percentage column.

Savannah's lead, while still safe, has been cut down by Columbus and Albany, until the former club stands within 200 points of the leaders. Albany has jumped above the .300 mark, but remains in cellar, while Charleston also climbed, maintaining the difference between them.

Jacksonville slumped during the week, and is safely in fourth place. The prettiest struggle of this week should be Macon's effort to get Columbus' berth as runner-up to Savannah.

Pitchers suffered during the past week, while batting averages fattened. Three extra inning games were recorded, Macon winning from Savannah, 5-4, in twelve innings on Friday; Albany defeating Charleston, 11-8, in ten innings Saturday, and Columbus and Charleston playing to a 5-5 eleven-inning tie the same day.

After weeks of good weather the league is coming in for its share of postponed games, and Monday the entire schedule was raised out. The only deviation of the week occurred at Charleston where a decision in Saturday's extra inning game caused the umpire to need a police escort to his hotel.

POLO MATCH COINS MONEY

NEW YORK, June 16.—The gate receipts of the two games of the international cup series amounted to over $290,-000, a record sum than has ever been taken in during the history of baseball in the world's series. The exact figures were $95,000 at Tuesday's game and $106,000 *at the second contest on Satur-*day.

The expenses are understood to be about $25,000, leaving a net profit of $176,000. What the American Polo Association will do with the balance has not yet been determined. About 60,000 persons saw the two matches at prices ranging from $25 for some of the boxes to $2 for seats in the grandstand and 50 cents in the field.

Crews Take Rest

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 16.—The Harvard and Yale crews here to contest in the regatta, rested Sunday on sailing trips on Long Island sound. Until Friday their training will be light, in view of Harvard's fast time in yesterday's practices, a close race is expected.

WILL B. SMITH REPEAT:? RAISED FLAG, THEN WON

Trounced the Barons, took an immediate rise and copped the pennant for 1907. Such was the feat of Manager Billy Smith, when the Barons raised the pennant in 1906, and now the question arises "Will Billy Smith repeat?" When Manager Vaughn raised the bunting captured in 1906 he chose the Atlanta club to witness the spectacle and to meet in hectic strife following the celebration.

The Crackers downed the Barons with a well determined vengeance and left with a string of victories. Following the event the Crackers made a *remarka-*ble spurt, gained the front and finished the season showing a clean pair of heels to seven other clubs. The Barons experienced the sensation of leading in 1906 and nearly holding the cellar in 1907.

Will Billy Smith repeat? Gathered in the folds are a formidable number of players and unless indications go astray the Crackers will be fighting for the bunting when the curtain of the 1913 season falls. The acquisition of Shortstop Bisland fortifies the wily leader with a fast and hard hitting inner garden, while his outfielders compose a healthy crew of marksmen.

Handicapped by the present loss of the services of Backstop Chapman, the receiving end is left to Joe Dunn, who is doing nicely. With Chapman in the line up, the Crackers will present a strong array of both defensive and offensive contestants.

*Twirling are men of determined abil-*ity and if the addition of Counselman bolsters up the foundation to the ex-pected degree, Smith will have a team which will be a difficult proposition to put to rout. In Dent, Brindy, Price, Mosier and Conzelman there are many good games, while the open purse of the Atlanta directors will assure the needed strength should the players fail.

However, it is to be well remembered that that memorable season of 1907 saw the Barons finish the undisputed champions of the sixth place. While there is at present some who may award the Barons this honor, it cannot be believed that the Barons will finish lower that fourth. With the return of Boyd to hold down the position of a reputable twirler, the Barons should recover their stride and march to the first division.—Birmingham Ledger.

Conzelman or Price to Hurl in First Game of Series—Birmingham Club Begins a Three-Game Series Thursday

TODAY'S LINE-UP.

The Nashville club is in Atlanta Monday to begin a three game series with the Atlanta Crackers, the series being slated to start at 3:45 o'clock Monday to begin a three-game series Gilbert Price will do the hurling for Atlanta in the first game, with Earl Fleharty probably flinging for the visiting bunch.

Atlanta and Nashville have been waging a battle for second place all season and the present three game series has a lot to do with the way the teams will stand for the next few weeks. Right now the Chattanooga Lookouts are in second place and going strong but at that Atlanta has much to gain by winning the series from the Vols.

The Nashville team is the kind which wins game by opportune hitting and inside baseball. The club as a whole is a weak hitting outfit, but with a few timely swatters Bill Schwartz always manages to make it decidedly interesting for all opposing clubs. Bill himself is a timely swatter of the highest type and his players seem to follow in his footsteps.

Right now the Atlanta club is playing a good class of ball and with the fans going good, as they have been for a week past, there is no reason why a winning streak should not be encountered. On the road trip just finished the club broke even in the six games, winning two out of three in Birmingham and dropping two or three in Chattanooga, this enabling Chattanooga to go to second place by the narrow margin of about half a game.

The last three days of the week the Birmingham Barons will be the attraction. On Thursday the big attendance trophy day will be celebrated and the attendance cup presented the Cracker club by President W. M. Kavanaugh. This is the biggest day of the week, and a big crowd is expected to be on hand.

Catcher Chapman, who has been out of the fame for ten days with a badly spiked leg, is about ready to return and when he gets back the team will have its full fighting strength. Dunn has been catching good ball since he has been working each day but he needs a rest and with Chapman back everything will begin to run smoothly.

POLO TEAM GOES HOME

*HEMPSTEAD, N. Y., June 16.—*As the championship English polo team, defeated by so close a margin in Saturday's de*ciding match* for the international cup, will leave for home on Thursday, a week earlier than was first intended, plans for a third match between the British players and the substitute team have been cancelled. Captains Ritson and Lockett will go to India to rejoin their regiments after a brief visit in England. Lord Woodcraigie, *the substitute British player, will re-*main in this country for some weeks, hunting game in the Rockies and in the Canadian northwest.

The English players took part in a practice game Sunday on the John S. Phipps field at Westbury, and this will probably be their last appearance in the United States. Their ponies will be shipped next Saturday to England and sent to the estate of the duke of Westminister.

William A. Hazard, secretary of the National Polo association, said today it would not be at all surprised to see another challenge come from Great Britain within the next two years and possibly within a year.

"Owing to the close contest," said H. L. Herbert, "the English players will not be satisfied until they have won."

August Belmont, another devotee of polo, will give a farewell dinner to the English athletes Monday night at the Meadowbrook Hunt club.

Church Teams Play

DALLAS, Ga., June 16.—The Methodist Sarazca class defeated the Baptist Baracas in two games. The first game was very close, the score being 7 to 6. The last game was from first to last in favor of the Methodists. Score 8 to 4. Batteries for the Methodists, Law, Watson and Crocker; Baptists, Bullock and Bullock.

THE SPORTLIGHT
BY GRANTLAND RICE

ON THE BATTLE'S EVE.

On! Up! "Boot and Saddle!" the bugles have pealed
To the trampling of hoofs on the sward of green;
There's a call that has come from the emerald field—
A call of the saber, a call of the shield,
A call for a blade that is eager and keen;
And gray ghosts out from the Has-Been Border,
Stalwart's side unto side again,
Crouching low for their captain's order,
The Big Four mount for the ride again.

On! Up! Boot and Saddle! They await the call,
And it isn't so much how the score might stand,
And the lust of a charge to the guarded wall,
Of the fight beyond where the weak must fall
As the field is cleared and the trail is spanned
And gray ghosts out from the old-time border,
Ready whatever betide again,
Crouching low for their captain's order,
The Big Four mount for the ride again.

What between the return to form of the American Big Four and the batting averages of her suffragettes, England is willing to concede the cloud but the "silver lining" attachment is nothing short of mockery.

The sun, as Mr. Longfellow deduced before us, may be shining beyond the clouds, but as long as the deadly stymie remains in its present compact from the Albionic cheering is likely to be muffled.

THE ANNUAL UPSET.

It fell to the Yanks three years ago to stop Johnson's winning streak after he had pre-empted eleven straight victories. It fell to the Browns last season to stop Johnson after attaching sixteen straight. Another second division team stopped Joe Wood. It fell to the Browns again to crack the Athletic dash after Mack's team had come within four games of the old White Sox record.

So it runs. The teams out of the fight are generally the ones that rise and furnish the upset. The only fun left to them lies in soaking the winners just as said winners are about to blow themselves to a record.

By the end of the Cleveland-Philadelphia series we'll know whether the American league race is to continue for a trifle longer or whether the Big Yawn is already due. When the Naps cease firing and fall back there will be a chorus of seven clubs attached to the ancient slogan entitled "Next Year."

June may be a trifle soon to ring in "next year" but we know of some clubs that might as well begin pointing towards 1915—If not 1920. As Prof. Goldberg almost put it, "They all look good year after next."

THE SENATORIAL SLUMP.

Griff has had a ball club for the last two seasons fighting up to its last kick. There was never any reserve power back of it, but the club was giving more for what it had than any other team in the game. It continued fighting every inch of the way, expending its last ounce of force.

Naturally then when a regular of Kid Foster's ability dropped out the machine began to lurch. Minus any reserve force human stability isn't robust enough to continue this incessant strain. Foster's disability and a slump in the pitching toppled the Senators back. In spite of which we yield them more credit than any other club for having gone on less natural strength than any rival in the field. No one can say they haven't fought whatever the finish might be.

OR DIDN'T SHE?

Did Miss Louise Imogene Guiney have the polo conclave in mind when she wrote.

I hear in my heart, I hear in its ominous pulses
All day, on the green, the hoofs of invisible horses;
All night, from their stalls, the importunate tramping and neighing,
Let cowards and laggards fall back; but, alert to the saddle,
Straight, grim and abreast, go the weather worn, galloping legion,
With a stirrup-cup each to the lily of fame that's around him.

Yale to Meet Harvard Nine

BOSTON, June 16.—The long standing rivalry between Harvard and Yale will be in evidence again on the baseball diamond this week as the culminating feature of the season among the Eastern colleges.

Yale, after playing through a preliminary season of phenomenal success, brings to the annual series with Harvard an almost clear title to the eastern inter-collegiate championship. Even victory by the Crimson can shake only a little Yale's claims to the eastern honors. Such a victory, however, would put the Harvard team into consideration for second ranking, although the defeat by Pennsylvania Saturday weakened somewhat the strength of the crimson bid for place.

Horses Are Burned

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., June 16.—Fire started by lightning last night burned to death eleven race horses in the stables at the county fair grounds here. The animals were valued at $25,000.

Chase's Work Big Puzzle

NEW YORK, June 16.—Hal Chase, the famous first baseman traded by Manager Chance, of the Highlanders, to the White Sox for Infielders Collie Zeider and Baker Borton, came to this city from California in 1905, having been discovered by Danny Long while playing for the St. Mary's College team. He played such a sensational game from the start that he was generally acknowledged the best first baseman in the country before his first season in a New York uniform had ended. When Clark Griffith was released from the management of the club and Norman Elberfeld was appointed manager, it is said that Chase became dissatisfied and deserted the team before the season was over. President Farrell induced him to return to the club, and he played good ball under the direction of George T. Stallings until the middle of the season of 1910, when his manager accused him of not playing his best game.

KEENEST OF RIVALRY BETWEEN MOTORRACERS

When the Atlanta motordrome is thrown open Tuesday night for the first night racing ever given in Atlanta, Harry Glenn, the Atlantian, and Georges Renel, of Paris, France, will renew an argument of Saturday afternoon, when their thrilling contest resulted in a dead heat.

Saturday afternoon marked Glenn's debut on the boards. He has ridden road races, hill climbs, track races and bucking broncos. But never until Saturday had he risked his neck on a fifty-eight degree track. His showing, all things considered, was amazing. In a three-cornered match race, he defeated Lockner, a star, and held his own with Renel, one of the veterans of the racing game. So close were the contestants at the wire that the judges could not separate them and the affair was declared a dead heat. They will ride it off, for a handsome purse, on Tuesday night. This contest will be one event of a big program.

Owing to the question that arose over this race, a new system of judging has been decided on. Three judges will be named for every race meet hereafter, and already several prominent Atlantians, long identified with the automobile racing game, have agreed to serve. Two of the judges will stand at the base of the track, with the starter. One will be in the grandstand, just at the top of the finish line. Each man will be required to "take a man"—that is, one will name the first man, one the second and one the third. With the finishes as close as they were Saturday such an arrangement will be necessary.

Considering what a complete success the opening meet was and especially because the sport is so much more sensational and attractive at night a crowd of record proportions is looked for Tuesday night.

The entire track will be illuminated by huge tungstens and will be as bright as day. With the certainty of cool weather after dark, comfortable seats and thrilling sport, the speed fans will make it a field day.

The riders at the track now are divided in their opinion as to which has the fastest machine. Some believe that the honor goes to "Tex" Richard's Indian. Others that Jock McNeil's "Jap" is the fastest machine, not only at the track but on the continent. Each man won a race Saturday. Each will be entered in the same events Tuesday night. This ought to make for thrilling sport.

Tickets are already on sale for the races Tuesday night at the Tumlin and Shepherd cigar stands. The doors will be open at the motordrome at 7 o'clock and the actual racing will begin at 8:30. There will be no introducing of riders and nothing to take up the time. At 8:30 the first race will start and for an hour and a half the motorcycles will roll in dizzy circles around the soup-bowl track.

The interesting part of a sock is the inside. These are smooth—fit snug—wear well—look fine.

Teach Athletes To Stand Losses

CHICAGO, June 16.—Henry F. Kallenberg was appointed official playmaster yesterday to the children of River Forest, a suburb. Besides teaching them how to play, one of the important duties of the position will be to show young Americans how to be good losers, which they are not, he says.

"The American baseball fan is a bad loser because his education has been sadly neglected," the playmaster told members of the village board of River Forest. His interest in baseball can be traced back to the corner lot games, where he spent forty minutes of every hour in argument and twenty minutes playing. It is from these boys that baseball fans are made. He kicks at everything, he hoots at the visitors and is fickle in his loyalty to the home team. The trouble with him is that he has not been rightly trained. It is through the playgrounds that we expect to improve the breed of fans."

Alva Richards, of Salt Lake, Olympic high jump champion, will enter the University of Chicago next fall as a student. He is at present representing the Illinois A. C. in athletic meets in Chicago.

Effective Sunday, May 25. Popular excursions to Warm Springs via A., B. & A. Only $1.00 round trip. Train leaves Union Station 8:00 a. m. Delightful outing.

POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK

PIGEONS

THIS season has brought out many new fanciers and breeders who are trying out the pigeon industry, especially squab breeding, and it is surprising how many different ones are making rapid progress in this direction. The ones who seem to be the most successful and getting the most out of their venture are those who are living in the city and have a market every day for their products. They being close to the consumers it is no trouble for them to convert their squabs into cash the minute they are ready to sell and this is where they can unload their products immediately when they are ready. This does not seem to be much advantage to a person that does not know, but the minute a pair of squabs are sold and removed from the nest the old birds immediately get busy and go to work again, to say nothing of the extra feed that a pair of squabs would consume if kept a few days longer. In raising hundreds of squabs, say if a pair are gotten out of the way three or four days ahead of some that would be kept longer and repeat this twelve times during the year you will not only have the old birds go to work and raise an extra pair or two more young ones but you have saved the feed and you can readily see that you are getting one hundred pair of birds with an extra 50c or $1 on each pair per year and you can readily see how much it amounts to, and it is these little things that count in not only the keeping of pigeons but poultry and cattle.

The main thing that a person has to look out for in raising squabs or pigeons is to have the house well ventilated, dry and plenty sunlight furnished the birds where they can get it at some time during the day and sun themselves. A bathing pool or tub where they can wash themselves is another essential thing, and this should be a separate vessel from where they get their drinking water. Their feed should be of a variety, and fed to them on a clean shelf, just what they will eat up clean twice a day. Plenty salt should be kept before them at all times and no birds allowed in the pens except mated pairs. It is surprising how many squabs a person can raise in a room 10 feet by 10 feet and a fly loft by 20 feet on a small place in the city or up on top of a house, and just so long as there is a vast number of people who are obliged to be fed there will never be any trouble in disposing of good, fat squabs at profitable prices. Hundreds of boys and girls can easily make more money taking care of fifty pairs of pigeons and selling the squabs than many people are willing to pay them a salary to work from soon in the morning until late at night. Squab raising, and even fancy pigeon breeding in a small way is something that the parents should encourage their children in as much as possible. It would keep many a child at home, and if they watch and study their birds and the ways of their pigeons it will enlighten them and almost be an education to them that will often lead to greater things.

Around the large cities it certainly ideal places to breed squabs for market, and one thing about the squab business is that the more people in it naturally the better the market will b and better prices will be obtained because people will become used to using squabs more freely and the demand will be greater. The duck trade on Long Island and in New York had to be built up from a small beginning, but the more it was indulged in and the more people encouraged in the habit of eating ducks naturally the more they wanted them and the better the prices were, and today the market is absolutely unlimited for Long Island ducks. The same thing is being done with squabs in many sections. Atlanta part of the year is buying squabs from Baltimore and Philadelphia. Also ducks are being shipped to Atlanta from New York and Boston. It does look like a pity for such things to exist but such is the case. We are neglecting many little items like this in our section that could be converted into thousands of dollars that we now never think of.

Presbyterians Take Permit for New Church, to Cost $12,000, at Gordon Street and Lucile Avenue, in West End. Granite Work on New County Court House Is Almost Completed—Other Big Buildings Are Nearly Completed

The Gordon Street Presbyterian church on Monday was granted a building permit for the erection of a new church at the corner of Gordon street and Lucile avenue, in West End.

The permit calls for an expenditure of $12,000. The building will be of brick veneer construction.

NEW COURT HOUSE WORK.

Almost the entire exterior granite work on the new county court house is completed and the building is one of the most impressive in massiveness and style in the country.

The cost of the work has greatly exceeded the original estimate, and the building, in final form, will represent an outlay to the county of $1,200,000.

The county forces expect to get into their new quarters early next year.

THREE OTHER BUILDINGS.

Final touches are being put on the Hotel Ansley, at Forsyth and James streets, and on the new Ponce de Leon apartment house at Peachtree street and Ponce de Leon avenue.

Exterior brick work on the Hotel Winecoff has been completed, and the contractors are now plastering the interior.

Work has been started on the new quarters of the produce merchants on Produce row, between Central avenue and the Washington street viaduct. As previously announced, this building will cost over $200,000, and will house sixteen concerns which now have their places of business on North and South Broad streets.

COVERING AND RENEWED SUPPORT CAUSED ADVANCE

Market in New York Closed 15 to 24 Points Higher Than Previous Close

By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, June 16.—Cotton opened steady at an advance of 4 to 8 points in response to higher Liverpool cables, buying of the near months by commission interests, and scattered covering. Weather advices were considered very favorable, but some of the private crop reviews were other less encouraging and the report of a New Orleans Tuesday indicating an increase of only about 3 per cent in acreage, with rather a spotted crop, tended to restrict new selling operations. Business was not active, but the market held steady within a point or two of the initial figures during the early dealings.

Trading continued active late in the morning, but offerings were relatively light and prices made new high ground for the movement on a renewed bull support. The market at midday was firm and about 12 to 15 points net higher. Estimated receipts today 75,000 bales.

The market continued firm during the early afternoon with prices selling about 14 to 18 points net higher. There was no change in the weather and demand was not active, but offerings were light.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, June 16.—Cotton futures opened steady at a rise of 7 points to 2 points decline in the face of the wildest advance. Buying was stimulated by good cables and bullish newspaper crop accounts. The fact that the weather tomorrow's weekly reports from the weather bureau will be unfavorable, with the weather man promised to be extremely favorable and little rain expected anywhere in the belt. Overnight temperatures were moderately high, making good growing conditions. The man, however, fluctuated only a few points on the decline and at the end of the first half hour of business was selling 1 to 3 points net lower on quiet close.

The forecast of fair weather for practically the entire belt checked buying for a while, but after the middle of the morning prices worked higher than ever, making new high levels for the present bull movement. Gossip of the day had little interest with the trade and buyers. Crop news was wholly disregarded; there were only a few scattered little lots of cotton was offered at the advance. At noon the market was 4 to 7 points higher at an advance of ten to seventeen points over Saturday's last quotations.

THE WEATHER.

Forecast till 7 p. m. Tuesday:
Atlanta and vicinity—Fair tonight and Tuesday.
Georgia and Alabama: Generally fair tonight and Tuesday.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

Fair weather continues to prevail in the southern states generally, but unsettled weather with rain are reported. High temperatures prevailed with the maximum on Sunday ranging in many points, Atlanta reporting 92 degrees. In the north and west considerable cloudiness prevails with unsettled showers in the St. Lawrence valley and the Dakotas northwest.

Moderate temperatures seem to be forming southwest of Texas, in southern Arizona, and the northern Rocky slope. As heating appears remains high over the east gulf states the weather will remain close dry and hot.

Temperatures are generally high east of the Rocky Mountains, and moderately low in the Plateau region.

Fair weather is indicated for Atlanta and vicinity tonight and Tuesday, with probably increasing cloudiness Tuesday afternoon, and a chance for rain before long.

Heavy short covering and speculative buying; short sellers are scrambling during the advance; shorts nervous.

Memphis, Tenn.—New York seems inclined to work more to the bull side today and selling being scarce, no great setback on advance. Weather Sunday was ideal and crop accounts are generally favorable. Trade is waiting for the government report, which will be issued Tuesday, demand in spot markets influences sentiment strongly. It is impossible to tell how far this advance will go, but short interest has been greatly reduced.—Miller & Cotter.

Saving and Investing

Protective Legislation.

BY JOHN M. OSKISON

Our young organization of investment bankers is doing a firstclass job in keeping track of legislation in the various states which affect the investor. Recently the association sent out a report covering the "blue sky" legislation enacted to date.

According to the report twelve states (I have heard, within a few days, that Michigan, not named in the list below, has ranked) have passed laws to protect the investor. These have been carefully closely the Kansas model of 1901. To no states is due more credit than to the governor for signing, and twelve legislatures were still considering protective laws when the report was issued. Investment bankers joined without taking any action on "blue sky" legislation.

The states which have been quickest to act on the laws have been those states in which the number of investors are smallest. Consider the list:

Kansas, Arizona, Arkansas, Idaho, Maine, Missouri, Montana, North Dakota, Oregon, South Dakota, Michigan, West Virginia and Wisconsin. Cut of that list only Michigan can be thought of as the home of any great number of buyers of securities. But twelve New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Connecticut? How about Illinois, Indiana, Ohio? How about Iowa, Georgia, Texas, California?

The fact seems to be that as yet "blue sky" legislating is regarded by the legislators as a safe chance to get their name in the papers, and is taken up with enthusiasm where no particular opposition could develop. In states like New York, Illinois and Indiana legislation was proposed, and in Indiana a bill got up to the governor. He vetoed it, and it wasn't even constitutional. Wherever large bodies of investors are found opposition to protective legislation has developed.

Probably it will be many years before all the states are equipped by law to protect investors from exploitation by investment sharps. It is fortunate that we can't have a federal act meanwhile.

TIMES-DEMOCRAT REPORTS ACREAGE INCREASE SMALL

Taking the Belt as a Whole, the Cotton Crop Is an Exceedingly Spotted One

NEW ORLEANS, June 16.—The Times-Democrat tonight presents its correspondent's first report on the cotton crop of 1913. The consensus of opinion points to the following results:

1. The increase of acreage is slight—possibly about 3 per cent, if at all.

2. The general condition is fairly favorable, but with numerous complaints of poor stands caused by unreasonably low temperatures.

3. The crop is late in all the leading districts, in consequence of immigration to town and public works.

4. Taking the belt as a whole, the crop is an exceedingly spotted one, and the weather of the next week will be unusually important.

5. There is a good deal of talk of boll weevil, but it is too soon to form an idea of the probable damage.

COMMERCIAL APPEAL'S REPORT.

MEMPHIS, June 16.—Commercial Appeal says: Good progress was made by the cotton crop west of the river and in Tennessee and Mississippi during the week. Rather cool weather visited practically all of this area proved of benefit, though more warmth and sun is needed and when fields were clean. Cool weather checked the best growth in the central states, but no actual damage done, even some progress was made—while in the west the plant made wonderful progress. Fields are in fine shape, both as to cleanliness and state of cultivation. The week was without a stand-off in Alabama, while in Georgia and the Carolinas low temperatures and excessive rain retarded growth and cultivation. However, the actual damage was small, and as fields were clean and in fine shape, they can withstand a headway. The evil is rather threatened to be actual, and whether the crop is materially damaged, depends largely on this week's weather. If favorable, fields will soon be right, and the early growth will be overcome, if unfavorable much permanent damage will be done. Taken as a whole, the belt is bought, general rains over the belt will far outweigh the check put upon the plant by the cool weather, while the excessive moisture has done little damage. The developments of the week will have much to do with the crop, for it will be in position to take advantage of good weather conditions. Weather at the close of the week much improved. There is little complaint of boll weevil. Correspondents are getting industry of weevil and a few scattered grasshoppers reported from Texas and Oklahoma, but no damage reported as yet from these states.

Demonstration agents are organizing farmers for the extermination of weevil and grasshoppers were said to have been leaving the fields.

HAYWARD & CLARK COTTON LETTER

NEW ORLEANS, La., June 16.—Weather conditions and changes over Sunday were distinctly favorable. Dry weather prevailed over most of the belt, with the only precipitation of consequence occurred in south Texas where it was needed. Minimum temperatures are 10 to 20 degrees higher than on Friday and are now entirely normal. Indications are for continuation of generally fair and warm weather, except in the coast districts of Louisiana and Texas, where local showers will possibly showery.

Washington promises a week of generally fair and warm weather. Memphis Commercial-Appeal summary for the week is very favorable. Other crop reports are mostly favorable.

The Liverpool market was about as due on the opening, spot sales continue large, 12,000 bales at 2 points higher. Our market showed strength this morning and advanced to 60 for August and 11.58 for October, principally owing to the renewed strength and activity of July in New York. The weekly report tomorrow is also expected to be bullish, as it covers the spell of fair and warm weather and the more strained conditions in July dominate the market and a decline in new crops ifoes not seem probable until the summer progress is completed.

New York continued strong on bullish on both crop reports and weather. Weather activity favorable. Dry weather prevailed over most of the belt,

BLACK HAND SPLINTERS HOME WITH DYNAMITE

J. D. Trappani and Family Are Absent From Los Angeles Home and Escape

(By Associated Press.)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 16.—J. D. Trappani, a wealthy fruit dealer here, formerly of New Orleans, whose residence was dynamited early today, told the police he believed the attempt on his life was planned by an organized society, with headquarters in New Orleans.

Trappani and his family were not at home when the explosion occurred. The building was wrecked. Peffeline Principe and a man who refused to give his name were arrested. Thy were both badly burned when their clothing caught fire from the explosion.

Trappani told the police a story of demands for money, threats and pursuit covering a period of eleven years. He was the object of mysterious attacks in New Orleans for nearly nine years, he said, and shortly after his arrival here two years ago, received letters demanding various sums. These he ignored. Last week, he said, he received a demand for $300, accompanied by a threat that his family would be killed unless the money was paid to a "black hand" society. This letter also he ignored.

STATUES IN CAPITOL ARE SHIFTED MONDAY

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 16.—This is "moving day" for John C. Calhoun, Peter Muhlnberg, Lewis Cass, of Michigan, and other celebrated statues of great men in statuary hall at the capitol. The "all hands around" movement was made necessary by the arrival of another addition to the group of America's immortals. This was the statue of Zachariah Chandler of Michigan.

"It's sure tough on us," complained a capitol guide, as he watched the perspiring workmen pull and haul the statues into different positions. "We'll have to learn the layout of all these old guys all over again."

The work did not proceed without friction. A band of Kansans almost raised the roof of the capitol with their protest when they discovered that John J. Ingalls had been relegated somewhat to the rear. They finally were pacified by Superintendent Elliot Woods. It is expected the work will be completed tonight.

INSURANCE HEARING IS NOW ON IN MACON

MACON, June 16.—The hearing on the petition of the minority stockholders of the Georgia Life Insurance company for an injunction restraining the company from changing its name and from reducing its stock, is still in process of hearing before Judge Mathews in the Superior court. The company on the other hand, has a counter petition for damages in the sum of $50,000 from the men who filed the proceeding.

Affidavits were submitted this morning to show that some of the original stockholders of the company did not contemplate the operation of a casualty business, and are opposed to the change. Testimony was also offered to show that the stock of the company is now selling below par.

BUTTS COTTON CROP INJURED BY COLD

JACKSON, Ga., June 16.—As a consequence of the recent cold considerable complaint is heard from farmers about the damage to the cotton crop. There is no doubt but that the crop was seriously injured by the cold east winds. Some samples brought to town Saturday looked parched and withered.

While the cotton could in Butts is about a month late this season, practically all the crop has been chopped out. With the return of hot weather the plant will come out very fast and will probably soon recover from the recent setback.

EL. JENKINS KILLED BY TRAIN AT MALONE

MALONE, Ala., June 16.—El. Jenkins was run over by train No. 24 of the A. B. & A. at this place, about 9 o'clock Sunday. He got aboard to talk to a friend and jumped off, it is said, while the train was moving, and in some manner fell under the cars and had both legs severed. Local surgeons of the road operated upon him, but he died in about 30 minutes after leaving the operating table. Jenkins was of a prominent family, and leaves a wife and one child. He was 25 years old.

MANY COLLEGE MEN IN DISHWASHERS' UNION

100 of the 700 Members in Frisco Are Former College Students

SAN FRANCISCO, June 16.—Of the 700 members of the San Francisco Dish Washers' union, 100 are college graduates. This, it is said, is a greater proportion of college men than can be found in any other labor organization in the country.

The statistics were compiled by members of the union, one of whom says he is a former instructor in mathematics in an eastern college. He resigned from that position, he said, to engage in a small business in Oswego, New York.

"Naturally, I do not care to reveal my name," he said. "We present a case of men who have found themselves unable to cope with some of the harsh requirements of life.

"I was absolutely unfitted for business. I was unmarried and came west with just enough money to keep me a week. At first I tried rough work, but I was unable to endure the hardships. So I became a dish washer."

The union is the only one of its kind, it is asserted. A dish washer gets $15 a week.

LOBBY PROBE HEARS PLAN TO FORM SUGAR TRUST

Oxnard Tells Investigators That Free Sugar Will Cause Big Trust

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Henry T. Oxnard, vice president of the American Beet Sugar company, told the senate lobby committee today that free sugar would result in the formation of a new "sugar trust." Only the best managed sugar factories would be able to survive free sugar, he said and a combination would result.

"Then you are going to form a new trust?" asked Senator Reed.

"I have that in mind," said the witness.

"In violation of the anti-trust law?"

"No sir; there is no law to prevent it. I have been so advised by counsel."

Oxnard told how he assisted in organizing the old sugar trust in 1888.

Senator Walsh began the cross-examination of Henry T. Oxnard, beet sugar raiser, questioning him about the American Beet Sugar association, an organization of beet sugar men and predecessor of the United States beet sugar industry which has been prominently in the present fight against free sugar. The witness did not know how much the old association had spent. Its books were destroyed about two years ago by his authorization.

Senator Walsh sought to learn whether Mr. Oxnard was in Washington when "Sugar at a Glance" was changed by some one in what the committee holds a violation of the senate order making it a public document. Oxnard said he was away at that time.

Oxnard was not prepared to say that he and his companies had contributed $50,000 to the United States Beet Sugar industry and its predecessors. He said it might be $10,000. He promised to produce the figures later.

Letters from Prominent Druggists addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

S. J. Briggs & Co., of Providence, R. I., say: "We have sold Fletcher's Castoria in our three stores for the past twenty years and consider it one of the best preparations on the market."

E. W. Stucky, of Indianapolis, Ind., says: "To say that we have recommended and sold your Castoria for years is the best endorsement we can possibly give any preparation. It is surely full of merit and worthy of recommendation."

Henry R. Gray, of Montreal, Que., says: "I would say that your Castoria for children is in large demand and that it gives general satisfaction. Not being a secret nostrum many medical men order it when circumstances indicate the use of such a preparation."

W. G. Marshall, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "We have found your Castoria to be not only one of the best sellers in the medicine market, but a preparation that gives almost universal satisfaction; in fact we cannot recall having had a single complaint from any of our customers who have used it."

Owens & Minor Drug Co., of Richmond, Va., says: "It is with pleasure that we lend our endorsement to Castoria, a preparation of proven merit. During our long experience in the drug business we have had abundant occasion to note the popularity of the genuine Fletcher's Castoria, which we unhesitatingly recommend."

Branen & Anthony of Atlanta, Ga., say: "No doubt if we were called upon to state positively what medicine we had sold for the greatest length of time, the greatest number of bottles sold, and the most satisfactory preparation to us and also to the customer, we feel that we could safely and conscientiously say Fletcher's Castoria."
